GERMAN ATTACKS GROW LESS VIOLENT

ALLIES CLAIM TOO HAVE MADE SOME PROCRESS

But the Battle in Belgium And France Not Yet Decisive

AUSTRIANS CLAIM 10,000 PRUSSIANS

In East Prussia the Germans Counter Offensive Has Been Checked by the Russians—Germans Unsuccessful in Night Attack at Caronne, Losing 2000 to the Allies' 200—Kaiser's Troops Making Strenuous Efforts to Gain a Foothold on the Western Bank of the Yser, Being Reinforced—The Fighting All Along the Line is Severe.

(By International News Service)

Paris, Oct .28.—It is officially announced that the German offensive in Belgium has become less violent, and it is claimed the position of the allies is maintained and that progress has been made between Cambrai and Arras, in France, and northeast of Yser in Belgium.

The Germans made violent night attacks north of the Aisne, endeavoring to assume the offensive there.

Locked in Death Grap

Although the Germans lost ground near Dixmude, the allies and the invaders are still locked in a death grapple along the Yser.

The fighting there is of unprecedented ferocity.

A Bavarian prince, said to be on the firing line at Yser, was wounded.

Russians Progressing

In Galicia the Russians are progressing to south of Sambor. In East Prusisa the Germans' partial counter offensive has been checked.

The Germans were unsuccessful in their night attack in the Craonne region. The fight there cost 2,000 killed and wounded to the allies 200.

Germans Not Repulsed

London, Oct. 28.—An Amsterdam dispatch states that the battle in northwestern Belgium is not near a decision yet and that the Germans have not been repulsed decisively, but are making strong efforts to obtain a foothold on the western bank of the Yser, with reinforcements. Fighting is very severe. Numerous buildings have been bombarded on both sides successfully by aeroplanes.

10,000 Russians Captured

Vienna, Oct 2[illegible]—The war office says the Austrians captured 10,000 Russians with a great quantity of munitions of war.

The Central Galicia situation is unchanged.

SHALL WE PAY THE ISSUE

In 1905 our Borough started with a debt of $[illegible] raised on the joint credit of the board of directors. This money was used to complete the building and furnish it.

In 1907 this note was reduced $6,000 through a state appropriation for this purpose, and today, with accrued interest, stands at about $12,-

If we get together and pay off this debt, Mr. A. W. Orr will give the hospital $25,000. $8,000 has already been subscribed.

Shall we not all get together in the campaign and raise the remaining $4,-000.

Let us face the issue.

Rev. Brown will conduct the mid-week prayer service at the Lutheran church in Rev. Allenbach's absence tonight.

STENOGRAPHERS WANTED BY THE U. S. GOVERNMENT

The United States civil service commission states that it has been unable to supply the demand for male stenographers and typewriters in the United States government service, especially at Washington. Young men who are willing to work for $840 to $900 a year have excellent opportunities for appointment to these positions.

Examinations are held monthly in 400 of the principal cities of the United States, and applications may be filed with the commission in Washington, D. C., to which application should be made for full information in regard to the scope and character of the examination and for application forms.

SENATOR CLAPP SPEAKS IN McKEAN COUNTY

The last public meeting of the Washington party in McKean county was held last evening in the Grand theatre in Bradford. The house was packed with an enthusiastic and attentive audience. Speeches were made by the local candidates, Hon. Lewis Emery and Hon. Guy B. Mayo. Senator Moses E. Clapp, of Minnesota addressed the audience and held their undivided attention from 9:30 until 11 o'clock. During all the time that Senator Clapp spoke not a person left the house, but every one in the audience listened to what he had to say to them.

Fred Betts presided and outlined the campaign in which the workers, about 50 in number, were divided into four squads, captained as follows: Messrs. William J. Usher, Hobart Callahan, Lewis Gaulin and D. L. Krebs.

H. B. Powell spoke of the financial standing of the hospital. A. H. Woodward and J. P. O'Laughlin spoke on the importance of Mr. Lee's gift to the town and implored the men to go out and raise the balance of $4000 due on the indebtedness. After the speeches the teams adjourned to their respective tables and divided up among their number the cards containing all the names of the townspeople. TRAINING A CHILD IMPORTANT DUTY

Prof. Zerfoss Delivers Address Before the Woman's Club

EFFORT WILL ELIMINATE EVIL

Conditions Existing in Clearfield Which Should Not be Permitted by the Citizens—Charity is Only Part of the Work That Lies Before the Women of the Town.

The Woman's club held an interesting and enthusiastic meeting in the club rooms last evening. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. George Reed, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Charles Kurtz.

Prof. Zerfoss, superintendent of city schools, addressed the club. He said that a ladies' organization such as the Woman's club means much to a community in social betterment. There are two ways to attack; one is to find a remedy for an evil, the other is to eliminate the evil so that there shall be no need for a remedy. "I believe that the evil can be eliminated with persistent effort. I believe that Providence did not intend such social conditions as exist. The social unit is the individual. Every individual is an infant; it is there that the work should begin.

"The child is not born into the world in sin, but pure. It is the work of humanity to keep the child pure. The age from birth to seven years is the most critical part of the character building of the boy or girl. Science has proven that only one-tenth of the mind is conscious; the rest subconscious. The subconscious mind is most active during the first seven years. Subconscious impressions are the most lasting. Education can bring a veneer of culture, but the test of manhood or womanhood can only be stood by the child who has had proper environment during the first seven years of its life.

"We are fulfilling our largest social function when we remove the evils which exist in many homes and cause the child to be ruined before it is ten years old. Every child has the right to be well born, well bred and well educated. Society should step in and see that such things are so.

"Women are the highest factor in the morality of the world. A club made up of women should multiply that power. There are conditions existing in Clearfield under which children are living that should not be allowed to exist. It is no use to hand out charity to these families as long as society does not go deeper into the matter. Children who live in homes where they degenerate morally and physically should be looked after and taken from such homes. That is the work of special organizations such as this."

Prof. Zerfoss's remarks were well appreciated by the club and ways of eliminating conditions that are known to exist in several Clearfield homes were discussed.

The plans for a Christmas for the children of Clearfield who would not have one otherwise were discussed, and the club asks that every housewife who has discarded toys lay them aside for the club during house-cleaning time.

The club year book is expected to be finished and ready for the next meeting, which will be held in two weeks.

MINE ACCIDENTS DECREASE, ACCORDING TO REPORTS

A report issued by James E. Roderick, chief of the miners throughout the state, for the quarter ending September 30, shows that the fatalities in the mines have been decreased greatly during the last three months, both in the bituminous and anthracite regions.

During July, August and September of this year, 102 fatal accidents occurred in the coal regions, as against 149 during the same period in 1913. In the anthracite regions during the last quarter, 137 fatalities occurred. 19 less than during July, August and September of 1913.

SLEDGE HAMMER BLOWS DELIVERED BY ROOSEVELT

He Deals With Penroseism In a Manner to Please The People

GREAT CROWDS HEAR HIM IN ALLL TOWNS

Colonel Roosevelt Tells His Audiences to Smash the Penrose Machine—Says Brumbaugh is Backed by the Bosses—The Only Way to Beat Penrose is to Vote For Gifford Pinchot—Celebrated His Birthday by Urging the Voters to Get Rid of the Political Machine Which Has Disgraced the State of Pennsylvania.

Altoona, Oct. 28—Colonel Roosevelt spent the happiest birthday of his life in the western Pennsylvania counties yesterday, and the workers in the steel mills gave him a birthday reception which fairly rivaled the tremendous welcome the anthracite miners accorded him in the eastern counties Monday.

The day boded well for the success of Gifford Pinchot's candidacy for the senate. He is the only man to beat Penrose, Colonel Roosevelt declared.

"Little Woolly Lamb"

In the very kind of birthday humor, the colonel delivered one sledge-hammer blow after another at Penrose, Penroseism and the whole Penrose machine, including Brumbaugh, "the most innocent little woolly lamb on the Personal Liberty' party ticket, "the come-on for Penrose and the stool-pigeon for Penroseism."

And fully 40,000 people cheered the Roosevelt delivery all through Allegheny, Washington, Fayette, Westmoreland, Cambria and Blair counties.

So busy was Roosevelt with Penrose and Penroseism from early morning till shortly before midnight that his only birthday lunch was a glass of milk and a sandwich taken in a day coach on a short midday jump from Pennsylvania into West Virginia and back again.

Huge Outdoor Demonstrations

Besides addressing tremendous outdoor gatherings at short stops of the Roosevelt special train at thirteen scheduled places the colonel addressed 6000 persons packed into the Johnstown auditorium, 10,000 people crowded into Fountain square and adjoining streets in Uniontown and two big mass meetings of 5000 persons in Altoona theatres last night.

But as on the day before among the coal miners in the east, so among the steel workers of the west, the Roosevelt schedule was smashed and three more meetings were forced on him. At Point Marion, a town of 1800 persons, 1200 people got together at the railroad tracks and compelled the special train hurrying back from West Virginia with Colonel Roosevelt to stop and give them a chance to greet him.

Denounced Penrose

The same happened at Fairchance and at Youngwood. Along the whole route Colonel Roosevelt denounced Penrose as the representative of the worst and basest influences in America. He denounced his alliance with bipartisan liquor Democrats and stirred his audiences to tumultuous enthusiasm when he paused and, with special emphasis, added:

"And I make no distinction between Penrose and Brumbaugh.

"Mr. Brumbaugh has taken his stand with Penrose and Penroseism. He is on the ticket with Penrose and with Senator Crow, the man who killed the workmen's compensation act in the last session of the legislature, and as he stands with Penrose and Crow, so Brumbaugh must fall with them. We must smash the whole Penrose machine and everybody connected with it. That's the only way to deal with them.

Vote for Pinchot

"Penrose's idea of government is government of the people by the machine boss for the special interests. We must drive Penrose and all men like Penrose out of the public life, and the only man who can beat Penrose is Gifford Pinchot. Mr. Palmer is not in the race at all. The liquor Democrats have left Palmer for Penrose, and the temperance Democrats have left Palmer for Pinchot as the strongest man and the only man in the field who can lick Penrose."

Wherever Colonel Roosevelt goes he introduces Gifford Pinchot personally, and the Progressive candidate for United States senator from Pennsylvania receives an ovation that is second only to that tendered the colonel himself.

The schedule for Thursday is as follows:

Tyrone, meeting at railroad station, 7 A. M. Leave, 7.15 A. M.

WHY PINCHOT WILL WIN

The solid Washington Party vote is behind him.

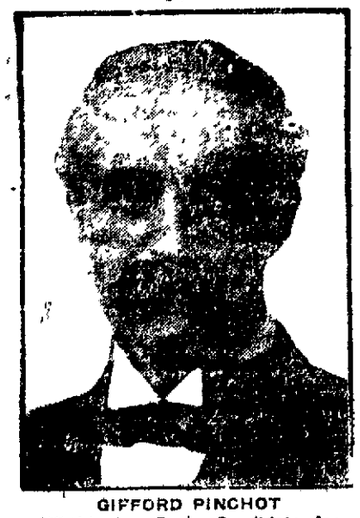
200,000 members of church and good government leagues, representing all political parties, have unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

Anti-saloon forces throughout the state in convention at Harrisburg overwhelming endorsed Pinchot.

National Republicans such as Harry L. Stimson, Secretary of War under President Taft; Herbert Knox Smith, formerly United States Commissioner of Corporations; Congressman William Kent of California, Lawrence O. Murray, Controller of the Currency for five years; Herbert Parsons of New York and other leaders have called on the Republicans of Pennsylvania for the sake of their own party to defeat Penrose and elect Gifford Pinchot.

Powerful Republican newspapers, such as the New York Tribune, the historic mouthpiece of the Republican party, call on the Republicans of Pennsylvania for their party's sake to defeat Penrose and elect Pinchot.

Leading National Democrats, such as Herbert Quick, leader of the Country Life movement; Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, head of the Pure Food movement; Charles S. Barrett, president of the Farmers' Union, an organization of 3,000,000 farmers, and Herbert S. Bigelow have endorsed Pinchot, and declared that he is the one man who should be elected United States Senator from Pennsylvania.



GIFFORD PINCHOT
Washington Party Candidate for U S Senator

Labor leaders endorse Pinchot. In the western part of the state James H. Maurer, president of the State Federation of Labor, spoke from the platform with Pinchot.

Representative citizens of Huntingdon and other counties unanimously endorsed Pinchot and asked Palmer to withdraw.

The annual convention of the Epworth League of the Northwestern district of Pennsylvania, meeting at Norristown, unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

The East Pennsylvania conference of the United Brethren church unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

The Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association gives Pinchot great ovation and hails him as "Our next Senator."

The Pittsburgh M. E. conference unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

The East Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran church endorses Pinchot.

County good government leagues, county ministerial Associations, county local option leagues, county anti-saloon leagues, county "Billy" Sunday associations, have endorsed Pinchot all over the state.

THE WEAKNESS OF MR. PALMER

Palmer cannot even poll the full Democratic votes. The Donnelly-Ryan "Old Guard" Democrats of Philadelphia are for Penrose.

The Duffy "Old Guard" Democrats of Pittsburgh are against Palmer and for Penrose.

The Old Guard Democrats of the coal regions have repudiated Palmer's leadership and will stand with the Donnelly-Ryan crowd of Philadelphia against Palmer.

The J. K. P. Hall "Old Guard" Democrats of Elk county are against Palmer.

The good government forces of the state in convention at Harrisburg have asked Palmer to quit the race because Pinchot is the stronger man.

Voters allied with good government leagues, anti-saloon leagues, church associations and other good government forces have joined their state body in asking Palmer to quit in favor of Gifford Pinchot, who is a stronger man.

Voters of Warren county, Philadelphia county, Huntingdon county, and other counties who want to see Penrose beaten, have adopted resolutions asking Palmer to quit, so that all the forces of good government can center on Gifford Pinchot and make the defeat of Penrose absolutely sure.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your Kidneys Occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, say a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become over-worked from the strain get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfastt and in a few days your kidneys will act fine This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

BRUMBAUGH BAND PLAYS HYMNS FOR LIQUOR GANGSTERS

Tenderloin Workers, Strong Arm Men and Penrose Heelers in Philadelphia Smile When "Martin" Makes Bid for Votes of Decent People

Four years ago when John K. Tener was the Penrose and liquor dealers' choice for governor, the political thugheelers of Philadelphia went the limit." They stuffed the registration lists, they put "phantom" voters in the machine wards, they used the police and firemen to intimidate citizens.

At every political meeting the bands played "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

Since then times have changed.

Penrose has lost the city government of Philadelphia and Mayor Blankenburg has taken the police and firemen out of politics. The director of public safety has purged the registration lists. Phantom voters can't be used to stuff the ballot boxes and outvote independent citizens.

Gang Would Be Angels.

Also a change has come over the McNichol and Vare ward workers.

When the Penrose machine and the liquor dealers nominated Martin G. Brumbaugh for governor, the politicial strong arm workers were told to be "careful."

A few days ago when the Brumbaugh banner was raised in front of the McNichol and Vare office building, the political workers from the Bloody Fifth ward, the tenderloin politicians from McNichol's district, the heelers from the river wards and all the gangsters and liquor dealers' workers were ordered to line up on Broad street to swell the crowd at the banner raising.

Liquor Men Heard Hymns.

It was the most peculiar political meeting ever held in Philadelphia.

The crowd of political workers were the same old tenderloin hangers-on, the same saloon hangers-on, the same strong arm men from the gang wards, but Mr. Brumbaugh who was glad to have their support was playing a game to the respectable elements of the city.

While the gang workers looked on, the band played "Onward Christian Soldiers," and "Come, All Ye Faithful." The Penrose and liquor politicians smiled a little at this.

Then the meeting was opened by a mission worker among the down and outs. Letters were read from ministers and from John Wanamaker who teaches a Sunday school class, lauding Brumbaugh.

To cap the climax, the name "Republican" did not appear on the Brumbaugh banner, when it was strung across the street.

"He's a Trimmer," They Said.

The whole air of the meeting, the hymns, the religious marching songs, the mission workers' harangue, the letters from ministers and Sunday school teachers, read in the face of the crowd of liquor men, political gangsters, Penrose heelers, strong arm men from the tenderloin wards, and representatives of the worst elements in corrupt politics, whose candidate Brumbaugh is, left a bad taste in the mouths of citizens.

The Penrose workers themselves hated the proceedings.

"We give him the votes, and he knows it," one of them said. "He's just a trimmer."

PINCHOT, THE BETTER MAN

When Gifford Pinchot was head of one of the government departments at Washington, employing three thousand persons he originated and put into effect a system of insurance whereby the families of men who were injured or killed at work were protected.

When he found that this was not sufficient he plunged into the fight for the workmen's compensation act for government employes, and did not cease his efforts until the law was passed.

The thousands of men who now work for the United States government and whose wives and children are protected in the event of death or injury owe much to Gifford Pinchot.

Boies Penrose refused to vote for the workmen's compensation when it came up at Washington. Under his influence the political machine in this state defeated the workmen's compensation [illegible] Pennsylvania Legislature [illegible] in this state who are killed [illegible] injured are not thoroughly protected.

The voters in Pennsylvania have before them these two men, one Gifford Pinchot, a conscientious and vigorous advocate of all fair and just legislation for workmen, the other, Penrose, a servant of the special interests, who has helped to defeat important legislation needed by workmen.

As between Penrose and Pinchot the working men of Pennsylvania should not hesitate a minute to cast their vote for Pinchot.

The Trey O' Hearts

A Novelized Version of the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name Produced by the Universal Film Co.

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Author of "The Fortune Hunter," "The Brass Bowl," "The Black Bag," etc.

Illustrated with Photographs from the Picture Production

Copyright, 1914, by Louis Joseph Vance

His first appreciated warning came when the surface of the desert seemed to lift and shake like the top of a canvas tent in a gale. At the same time a mighty gust of wind swept athwart the waste, hot as a furnace-blast. In a trice dust enveloped man and horse, a stifling cloud of superheated particles that stung the flesh like a myriad needles. And then darkness fell, the twilight of hades, a copper-colored pall. Nothing remained visible beyond arm's length.

Blinded, half suffocated, unspeakably dismayed and bewildered, the broncho swung round, back to the blast, and refused to budge another inch.

Himself more than half-dazed, but still hounded by his nightmare vision of Judith, Alan dismounted to escape being torn bodily from the saddle by that hellish sand-blast, and seizing the bridle sought to draw the horse on with him.

He wasted his strength in that endeavor: the animal balked, planted its hoofs deep in the sand, stiffened its legs and resisted with the stubbornness of a rock; then, of a sudden, jerked his head smartly, snapped the bridle from his grasp and flung away, scudding before the storm.

Pursuit was out of the question: indeed, the bridle was barely torn from his hand before Alan lost sight of the broncho.

"Rose—Miss Trine—Reason With the Madman—"

For a moment he stood rooted in consternation as in a bog—with an arm upthrown across his face.

Then the thought of Judith recurred. . . .

Head bended and shoulders rounded, he began to forge a way into the teeth of the sandstorm.

How long he fought on, pitting his strength against the elements, cannot be reckoned.

In the end he stumbled blindly down a slight decline and was abruptly conscious that he had in some way found shelter from the full force of the wind.

He staggered on another yard or two, breathing more freely, and blundered into a rough-ribbed wall of rock—some sporadic outcrop, he understood, whose bulk stood between him and the storm.

He thought to rest for a time, until the storm had spent its greatest strength; but as he laid his shoulder gratefully against the rock and scrubbed the dust from his smarting eyes he saw what he at first conceived to be a hallucination: Judith Trine standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and come quickly nearer.

"Alan! You came for me! You followed me, through all this!"

He threw off her hand with a bitter laugh—that was like the croaking of a raven as it issued from his bone-dry throat—and in momentary possession of hysteric madness, reeled away from the woman and the shelter of the rock and delivered himself anew to the mercy of the dust-storm.

CHAPTER XLII.

Open Mutiny.

Though she had been schooled to hold the very name of Law in loathing unspeakable and to think of Alan as a mortal enemy and as one whose death alone could properly requite the cruel injury that had been done her father; and though the man himself had laughed to scorn her first involuntary confession of that love for him which now consumed her being with its insatiable fires, she swallowed her chagrin and followed him with the solicitude of one whose love can recognize no wrong in its object. Through all the remainder of that day of terror she was never far from his side.

With the meekness of the strong, she made herself his shadow. And she was now the stronger, for she had had more than an hour's rest beside the waterhole, which he had missed on the way of that rocky windbreak. Sooner or later his strength must fail him and he would need her; till then she was content to hide her hour.

It befell presently in startling fashion; she was not a yard behind him when he vanished abruptly.

But the next moment Judith herself was trembling on the crumbling brink of an arroyo of depth and width indeterminable in the obscurity of the duststorm. Down this, evidently, Alan had fallen in his dizzy blindness.

She found him insensible, lying with an arm bent under him in a pose frightfully suggestive of dislocation. Yet when she turned him on his back and released the arm, he made no sign to indicate that the movement had caused him the slightest pain.

There was a slight cut upon his brow, a bruise about his left temple. She tore linen from her bosom, beneath her coarse flannel shirt, and with sparing aid from the canteen, washed the cut clean and bandaged it.

Then seeing that the storm held with fury unabated, she rose, reconnoitered and returned to exert all her strength and drag the unconscious man across the dry bed of that ancient water-course and under the lee of its farther bank.

There, sitting, she pillowed his head upon her lap, and bending over him made her body an additional shelter to him from the swirling clouds of dust.

And for hours on end Judith nursed him there, scarce daring to move save to minister to his needs, bathing his fevered brow and moistening his parched lips and throat.

In the course of the first hour she was once startled by the spectral vision through the driving sheets of dust of a horse that plodded up the arroyo, bearing two riders on its back.

Weary with the weight of its double burden, it went slowly and passed so near to Judith that she was able to recognize the features of her sister and Tom Barcus.

Be sure she made never a sign to catch their attention.

Within the next succeeding hour the coppery light lost something of its hot brilliance, took on a darker shade, and then one darker still. Twilight stole athwart the desert, turning its heat to chill, its light to violet.

Growing more intense, the cold eventually roused the sleeping man.

And hardly had his eyes unclosed and looked up into the eyes of Judith bending over him than he started up and out of her embrace, got unsteadily upon his feet and after a moment of pause, watching her rise in turn, strode away—or, rather, staggered—with the gesture of exorcism.

Uncomplaining, hugging her newborn humility to her with the ecstasy of the anchorite his horse-hair shirt, Judith followed him patiently, at a little distance.

Not far from where he had rested there was a break in the overhanging wall of the arroyo. Through this he scrambled painfully, reaching the level of the desert only after cruel effort, the unheeded woman at his heels.

A brief pause there afforded both time to regain their breath and survey the desert for signs of assistance: it offered none, other than what they might accomplish through their own exertions. For leagues in any quarter it stretched without a break other than the black cleft of the arroyo, gleaming a bleached and deathly white in the moonshine—like the face of a frozen world.

With tacit consent both turned that way, Alan leading, Judith his pertinacious shadow, with never a word or sign between them to prove that either was aware of the other's company.

But this was a state of affairs that could not long endure. Judith had the price to pay for her own trials, suffering and privation: the strain began to tell sorely upon her. She reeled slightly as she walked, weaving a winding trail across and across the straighter line of footprints that marked Alan's course through the ordered pattern of the powdered sagebrush.

And of a sudden she collapsed.

Instinct alone made Alan glance over-shoulder: for she had made no sound whatever.

He turned and came directly back to her, knelt beside her, lifted her head, pillowed it gently on his arm and plied her in turn with the dregs of the canteen.

With a sigh, a stifled moan and a little shiver, she revived.

He helped her gently to regain her feet, passed an arm round her.

In this fashion they struggled on in strange, dumb companionship of misery and wonder.

Thus an hour passed; and for all their desperate struggles neither could see that the light on the mountainside was a yard the nearer.

Behind them other lights appeared, two staring yellow eyes that peered up over the horizon, seemed to pause a time in search of the two, then leaped out directly toward them.

Of this they were altogether ignorant; and when a deep, droning sound disturbed the desert silence like the purring of some gigantic cat, both ascribed it to the drumming of their laboring pulses.

The two lights were not a mile behind them when, silently, without a sign to warn the girl, Alan released her, took a step apart and dropped as if shot.

Instantly she was kneeling by his side. But in the act of bending over him she drew back and remained for several moments motionless, staring at those twin glaring eyes, sweeping down upon them with all the speed attainable by a six-cylinder touring car negotiating a trackless desert.

When Judith did move it was not to comfort Alan. On the contrary, her first act was to draw from her pocket a heavy, blunt-nosed revolver, break it at the breech and blow its barrel clear of dust. Her hand went next to the holster on Alan's hip. From this she extracted his Colt's .45, treating it as she had the other. Then she crouched low above the man she loved, as if thinking perhaps to escape notice from the occupants of the motorcar.

If that were her thought, it was bred of an idle hope. Alan had chosen to fall in the middle of a wide space so arid that not even sagebrush had ventured to take root there. When the glare of the headlights fell upon them it was inevitable that discovery should follow. The motor car stopped within twenty feet. Three men jumped out and ran toward the pair, leaving two in the car—the chauffeur and one who occupied a corner of the rear seat: an aged man with the face of a damned soul, doomed for a little time to live upon this earth in the certain knowledge of his damnation.

As this happened, Judith Trine leaped to her feet and stood over the body of Alan, a revolver poised in either hand.

"Halt!" she ordered imperatively. "Hands up!"

The three who had alighted obeyed without a moment's hesitation; her father's creatures, they knew the daughter's temper far too well to dream of opposing her will.

In the six hands that were silhouetted against the headlights' radiance, three revolvers glimmered; but at her command all three dropped harmlessly to the earth.

Then, sharply, "Stand back two paces!" she required.

They humored her unanimously.

Darting forward, she picked up and pocketed the three weapons, then with one of her own singled out the men she named.

"Now, Marrophat—and you, Hicks—pick Mr. Law up and carry him into the car. And treat him gently, mind! If one of you lifts a finger to harm him, that one shall answer to me."

Still none ventured to dispute her. The two men designated, without a sign of disinclination, stepped forward. One lifted Alan Law by the shoulders; the other took the legs. Between them they bore him with every care toward the motor car.

But now a second will manifested itself. The man in the rear seat lifted up a weirdly sonorous voice:

"Stop!" he cried. "Stop this nonsense! Drop that man! Judith, I command you—"

October 28, 1914

Good evening! Did you put on the heavier kind this morning?

The Personal Liberty party is scented with old rye.

Christmas shopping, to be done properly, should be started early.

A vote for Washington party candidates is a protest against Penrose, rum and injustice.

Paying one dollar to get a shot at a bunny rabbit is pretty expensive sport, most hunters will affirm.

Probably if the allies were to retreat into France they might have a better chance to whip their foes.

Lest you forget, now is the time to set out your Made in America plants in order that they may thrive in the spring.

A. Mitchell Palmer is due to receive the greatest shock of his life when he reads the election returns next Wednesday.

Cold weather brings its hardships to all. In this town it will prevent the usual evening parades of the prettiest girls in the state.

A vote for Washington party candidates for assembly will be a vote to insure the passage of beneficient laws by the state legislature next year.

If every voter who is opposed to Penroseism will vote for Gifford Pinchot next Tuesday the state will be rid of that political incubus, Penrose.

Still the graveyard yawns for some of those people who will do nothing for the towns in which they live or allow others to do what should be done.

What a salary the Republican party would be willing to pay the author of war news along the Vistula if it could get him to make pre-election predictions.

Colonel Roosevelt was fifty-six years of age Tuesday, and celebrated the day urging the people to overthrow the evils attached to the state government.

Noah Webster was not equal to the task of finding a word suitable to the state or mind of the thousands of hunters who return from the woods and fields empty-handed.

All of the proposed amendments to the state constitution should be approved by the people at the polls next Tuesday, for all of them are worthy of the support of the voters.

Canadians are not badly frightened over the threat of a German invasion of the dominion. Germany has about as big a task as she can attend to over on the other side of the big pond.

Berlin declares that prisoners from the armies of the allies are well treated in Germany. In Munich, however, the prisoners are placed in pens and exhibited to the Bavarians as curiosities, an admission being charged those who wish to gaze on the "barbarians." The lie factory in Berlin is working overtime.

TIME TO CLEAN HOUSE

Not only the ousting of Penrose from the leadership of the twin political machine in Pennsylvania through his defeat as a candidate for United States senator is desired by the honest people of the state, but the complete overthrow of the machine which has for so many years ruled at the state capital. The time has come for a cleaning of the state house, for the eviction of the heads of departments who have been entirely too willing to obey the orders of Penrose and for the discharge from public service of the army of employes who use their official positions to aid in the perpetuation of Penroseism and its attendant ills.

The people have little knowledge of the actual condition of affairs in the several departments of the state government. There are heads of departments who are serving the people loyally and ably, such as Dr. Dixon, head of the health department; Auditor General Powell, but, these are exceptions to the general rule. The highway department, the fisheries department, the game commission, the hundred and one sub-divisions of the state government are in charge of men who look to the Penrose machine for their orders, and as a consequence the public's business is neglected and the state treasury is depleted to meet the demands upon it for salaries for work either not performed or done in a perfunctory manner.

There is need of house cleaning at Harrisburg. There is need of new men at the head of the state government, in the senate and in the house. This need can be filled by the election of anti-Penrose candidates for every state office and every seat in the state senate and house. There can never be any change in the methods of conducting the affairs of the state so long as Penrose is boss of the government and of the state legislature. The only hope of bringing about the needed change in the executive and legislative departments is by defeating the candidates of the Penrose machine. Vote for the Washington candidates, who are pledged to bring about better conditions at Harrisburg.

RUM AN ISSUE

It has only lately that the Penrose Republicans have discovered that rum is a very important issue in the present state campaign. In past years Penrose and the liquor element had things their own way and carried elections at will. The people looked upon liquor as a necessary evil—a natural ally of the politician. But things have changed. The man who now depends upon the liquor element for support in his campaign is certain to run up against the decent-minded voters of the state with sad results to himself.

Whatever views the average man may have on the liquor question he does not desire to have a close friend of the whiskey trust and the rum seller make the laws of the state. Even men who drink do not approve of the proposition that the liquor interests shall have control of the lawmaking power of the state and nation. It is because of these things that the people of Penn-sylvania look with disfavor upon the Penrose candidates, who have received their chief support from the liquor interests and who count upon the liquor vote to elect them to the offices to be filled this year.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president, champion of political reform, is in Pennsylvania, speaking in behalf of the Washington party ticket. From the time Colonel Roosevelt entered the state from New Jersey he has met with ovation after ovation, the people in the towns he has visited greeting him with enthusiasm as sincere as it is spontaneous. The Colonel has met thousands o fvoters, and everywhere he has been assured that he has as many friends to lay as he has ever had.

Colonel Roosevelt's mission in the Keystone state is to aid in the election of Gifford Pinchot and the whole Washington party ticket. He has been very much gratified by the fact that the sentiment of the people of the state in favor of progressive politics has grown stronger than it was itics has grown stronger than it was polled such a large vote that it is now in second place among the political organizations of Pennsylvania. It is believed that Colonel Roosevelt's visit to this state will clinch the election of Gifford Pinchot and the overthrow of the Penrose machine.

WASHINGTON PARTY MEETINGS

Beginning Monday Washington party meetings, to be addressed by Guy B. Mayo and others will be held at the following places:

Wednesday evening, Oct. 28—Madera.
Thursday evening, Oct. 29—Osceola Mills.

More Republicans Who Repudiate Boies Penrose

Following are the expressions of several more Republicans whose consciences will not permit them to support Penrose:

David M. Rankin, of Westmoreland count, president of the Lutheran laymen's movement, a Republican for more than 45 years, says:

"I am an ardent supporter of Gifford Pinchot for election to the United States senate because he is sound on the tariff question, and his candidacy is fully representative of the best interests of all the people. From the standpoint of a Republican of more than forty-five years I know of no good reason why I could honorably support Boies Penrose as against Gifford Pinchot."

George W. Thompson, of Vuena Vista, a Republican, says:

"He believes in a protective tariff—one that protects the common workman as well as the millionaire manufacturer."

W. E. Schnee, of Montgomery Lycoming county, a Republican, says:

"He is of the type of Clay, Lincoln and McKinley, and when men like Roosevelt, Lindsay, Wiley, Beveridge, Mitchell, etc., praise and support him it convinces me that Gifford Pinchot would be far superior to either Penrose or P[illegible] as a United States senator [illegible] Pennsylvania."

Dr. John A. Campbell, of Williamsport, a Republican, says:

"The vast majority of both capitalists and laborers in Pennsylvania have always stood opposed to free [illegible] and favored a protective tariff. Upon this issue Pinchot stands, more than any other candidate, for what the rank and file of the voters of this state need."

THE HOSPITAL FUND

Clearfield citizens are asked to contribute four thousand dollars to complete the fund which is being raised by the trustees of the Clearfield hospital for the purpose of liquidating the standing indebtedness of that institution that they may take advantage of the generous offer of Asbury W. Lee to give the hospital five thousand dollars a year for five years, provided this old debt is cancelled.

Four thousand dollars does not appear to be a very large amount for the prosperous citizens of Clearfield to give to a worthy cause. The hospital is doing most excellent work in this community, and this work should not be hampered for the lack of funds. Mr. Lee's five thousand dollars a year will go far towards helping to meet the running expenses of the hospital and his proposition is one which ought to appeal to every citizen of not only the borough, but of every town and village in the county.

WORK OF CONGRESS AT LONG SESSION

Repeal of Canal Toll Exemption by the Democrats

APPROPR'TED $1,115,908,777

The second session of the sixty-third congress has been remarkable in many ways. It is the longest session ever held. It has heard more speeches and piled up a larger record than any other previous session in the history of the United States. The Congressional Record will have 20,000 pages; whereas the greatest number heretofore was 13,000 pages. The session has done the following important things:

Passed the federal reserve act, revising the banking and currency laws.

Repealed the exemption clause of the Panama canal act, thereby imposing tolls upon American coastwise ships.

Passed the Clayton anti-trust act, supplementing the Sherman anti-trust law, making guilt personal.

Passed the bill creating the federal trade commission.

Provided $35,000,000 for a government railroad in Alaska.

Provided for the American registry of foreign built ships.

Received more than 5,000 nominations from the president.

Ratified twenty-six arbitration treaties.

Appropriated $1,115,908,777.26 for the fiscal year 1915.

Adopted a resolution justifying the president in sending troops to Mexico.

Appropriated $500,000 to bring Americans out of the war zone in Europe.

Broke up the lobby.

Passed the alley bill, which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had urged, to clean up the alley sections of Washington.

Anyone wishing to take up a business course in the evening will please write for particulars. P. O. Box 184, Clearfield. 2t

(Special to the Progress.)

The inevitable has happened.

Gunboat Smith was lured into the ring against a real fighter in real condition and Gunboat Smith was battered to a pulp in the first two rounds and sent down and out for the full count in the third.

The suspicion that many had for a year or more that Smith, as a fighter, was a joke proposition has been confirmed. And when Sam Langford sent Smith to the mat in Boston the other night he crushed any ambitions that Smith may have had of becoming the champion heavyweight of the world.

Smith put up a few good fights but he never put up a real exhibition. He neither looked like, nor acted like a man of championship calibre. He was lucky—that's all. He managed to stay on his feet against a few real foes, but he managed to turn that trick because he was shifty on his feet—because he kept as far away from Well aimed punches as he could.

Something like eight or nine months ago Smith fought Langford and the newspaper critics gave the fight to Smith on points. The "victory" made Smith prouder than ever. And it made the general public believe that Smith really was a fighter. But one thing that the public didn't know about that fight was the fact that Langford was about 30 pounds overweight, and so bulky that he had trouble moving about the ring.

"Smith's continual boasting of his "victory" over Langford piqued the negro fighter. He yearned for another chance at the "white hope." After camping on Smith's trail for many months he finally caught up with him and coaxed him into a match that resulted in the fight in Boston a week or so ago.

The Langford that Smith met that night was a different Langford than the one he met nine or ten months before. It was almost the Langford of old—the trim sleek, agile Langford. "The Boston Tar Baby" trained for that second fight with Smith. He shed every ounce of superfluous flesh. He got down to fighting form. Age has slowed Langford somewhat, but "Tham" figured that he could be about 10 years older and still win from Smith.

And he did win from Smith, in a manner so decisive that it left Smith the "Alibi King" absolutely no chance to issue forth with an alibi. It was a crushing defeat for Smith—and a decisive victory for a negro fighter who has been called a "has-been."

The elimination of Smith as a contender for the heavyweight championship of the world has not clarified the situation, however. Smith's feat has caused Jess Willard to sh into the glare of the publicity spotlight and shriek louder than ever that "I am the man—the only —who can whip Johnson"

If a toss-up as to which fighter—Smith or Willard—is the greater joke as far as championship caliber is concerned. Willard, one of the hugest men that ever donned a pair of boxing gloves, endowed with an enormous reach and great weight and endurance lacks the greatest asset of a real fighter—the fighting spirit.

Willard is not a natural fighter—and he will never be a real fighter. He has been mingling in ring engagements for several years. What has he accomplished? A few knockouts over dub heavyweights who wouldn't have fared much better than a burlesque affair. He tackled Carl Morris, as big as himself, and he seemed afraid to wade in. He was as clumsy as a sea lion. His punches lacked steam, his defense was weak and aggressiveness was a foreign quality.

And this is the man who has an idea that he can whip Johnson!

Willard couldn't whip Smith. Langford, not rated nearly as high as Jack Johnson, turned the trick in three rounds. Where does Willard enter?

The heavyweight situation, as far as the white race is concerned, is in just the same condition as it was in 1910 after Johnson hammered Jeffries into unconsciousness. There is not a white man in sight at the present time who has a chance with Johnson, despite the fact that the Johnson of today isn't the Johnson of 1910.

Johnson's four years of dissipation has robbed him of some of his speed, it has softened his muscles, and probably has dulled his one-time adroit pugilistic brain. But Johnson today is better, by far, than any man in the "white hope" division and if Johnson was confronted with the task of disposing of two "white hopes" in one night the chances are he would be equal to

"The Misleading Lady."

What will probably be the most notable comedy offering of the season will be "The Misleading Lady" which is to be presented at the New opera house tonight, Oct. 28.

"The Misleading Lady" contains a lesson for young women who tamper with the heartstrings of men under the guise of harmless flirtation, but the lesson goes only so far as to lead to interesting situations and no further. In this instance the maiden by the woman's deceit, decides to try love-making as it is done in faraway Patagonia, or some such place. He tosses his overcoat over her head, catches her in his arms, bundles her into his automobile and drives to his shooting lodge in the Adirondacks.

Other things happen with much speed at the lodge. A harmless lunatic, who has escaped from a neighboring sanitarium, is in possession of the lodge, so while the man is trying to convince the woman into barbarian beliefs of love making the lunatic is trying to convince both of them he is Napoleon Bonaparte. And then the young friends arrive to rescue her, but she refuses to be rescued. Seats now on sale.

"THE REAL PENROSE"

PENROSE MACHINE AIDED WILD FOWLS; SPURNED WORKMEN

Pennsylvania Federation of Labor in Report Tells How Gang Betrayed Labor, But Helped Wild Turkeys.

The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, comprising all the union labor men of this state, know what happened to the workmen's compensation act at the last session of the State Legislature.

In spite of repeated promises to these men, Senator Penrose and his two organization chiefs, Senators William E. Crow and Jamse P. McNichol, defeated the compensation bill.

In telling about the defeat of this good law the report of the legislative committee of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor says:

"But the senators, like those whom the gods would destroy, madly stuck to the dollar. Crow groaned for it, Homsher grinned for it, Sones growled for it. The dollar triumphed. We were defeated. But not disgraced and discouraged. For since the senators were humanely enough disposed to pass laws providing for sanitary finger bowls, for the protection of wild turkeys and to limit the work hours for horses, there is hope that they may, some day, reach such a soul softened stage as to forget their own interests long enough to allow them to pass a bill for the protection of widows and orphans."

HERE THEY ARE— ALL ON THE JOB FOR PENROSE AGAIN

B. M. Clark, solicitor of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Company, who camped at Harrisburg at the last session of the state legislature and was the principal lobbyist against the workmen's compensation bill, is now on the stump for Penrose. He says he used to be a Democrat.

F. W Walker, head of a manufacturers' association of Beaver county, who succeeded in having the bill mutilated at the last session of the state legislature that would have prevented lead poisoning among workers, is leading the campaign for Penrose in his home district.

Joseph Grundy of Bristol, chief lobbyist against the child labor bill, is spending money and personally working for Penrose in his home county.

Neil Bonner of Philadelphia, one of the principal lobbyists against the local option bill at the last session of the state legislature, and president of the liquor dealers' state association, is out publicly and working vigorously for Penrose and Brumbaugh.

DETRICH SMASHES PENROSE'S BLUFF

Washington Party State Chairman Asks Questions Which Boss Has Been Unable to Answer

In a speech at Waynesboro, Franklin county, recently, A. Nevin Detrich, state chairman of the Washington party, took as his text, the statement of Penrose, made last June, in which the boss said he would answer for his record.

"It has been several months since that time," said Detrich, "and although we have asked him in twenty different ways, he has side-stepped every question.

"I challenge Senator Penrose to answer for his record. That record, which he has created in the seventeen years of his service is the most damning indictment ever presented against any public man in our generation.

"Penrose, by his own votes, which are in the Congressional Record for all to see, has been a servant of the trusts, of the special interests, of the liquor interests, of the financial pirates, and of every evil force that has tried to thrust its dirty paws into American politics.

"Boies Penrose says he will answer any question on his record.

"I ask him why he voted on every occasion against the direct election of United States senators?

"Why did he vote on every occasion for Lorimer, the corrupt Illinois boss, who was expelled from the senate because the senators found that the record of his election 'reeks and teems with the evidence of a general scheme of corruption?'

"Why was he one of the 'brazen five' who were the only senators to vote for Robert W. Archbald, a corrupt Scranton judge, who was impeached and dragged from the bench because he used his position as judge for his own profit?

"Why did he refuse to vote for the workmen's compensation bill, the child labor bureau bill, the eight hour day for laborers?

"Why is every crooked interest in the state supporting him? He is asking for our votes, and we have a right to know."

PENROSE BUTTONS LITTER STREET

William Townsend, a street sweeper of Coatesville, who keeps Main street between First and Third avenues clean, declared Wednesday that he had swept up at least 500 Penrose and Brumbaugh buttons in the last few days. This is only two squares of the town. Following the temperance talk at the Tabernacle by Dr. George W. Anderson, the militant minister, many Penrose buttons were cast from coat lapels as the men passed out of the building.—Christiana Ledger.

CORRUPT PRACTICES BILL DEFEATED BY THE MACHINE

By WILLIAM DRAPER LEWIS

The corrupt practices act defeated by the Penrose machine in 1913 would have limited the amount of money which candidates or their friends might spend in primary or election campaigns. For example, a candidate for governor would have been forbidden to spend more than $10,000; a candidate for senator, more than $1,000. The law was so framed as to make evasion by the formation of "Protective Unions," or otherwise virtually impossible. It also included provisions for the publication by the state of an official voters' pamphlet a copy of which would have been mailed to every registered voter two weeks before election. Not only would this pamphlet have permitted every candidate for office to bring his appeal directly home to the voters, but it would also have given any person objecting to the nomination or election of a candidate an opportunity to state his objections and have them presented to every voter—not merely those who subscribe for a partioular partisan newspaper. The expense of issuing the pamphlet would have been borne in part by the respective candidates.

Wm. Draper Lewis

Such a law would be a great step toward clean politics. It was opposed and defeated by the Penrose forces in the senate of 1913 because the one thing which the Penrose political machine favors above all else is an act which limits the power of money in politics and which contains provisions tending to produce intelligent thoughtful action on the part of the voters. They opposed the bill for the same reason that they have always opposed any change in the present vicious provision permitting the assistance of voters in marking their ballot on election day.

It is a significant fact that Dr Brumbaugh has not, up to this time made any reference either in his original public statement or in any of his utterances, to the necessity in this state for the passage of the corrupt practices act or in any other act dealing with the subject.

A Pertinent Query.

Ask your neighbor who is in favor of sobriety and decency, whether he believes that Brumbaugh is sincere for local option when Neil Bonner, the president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Liquor Dealers, is urging saloon keepers all over the state to support him.—Mt. Jewett Herald.

CENTRE COUNT MINISTERS ASK PALMER TO WITHDRAW

Association Representing All Denominations Urge Concentration of Anti-Penrose Strength on Gifford Pinchot.

Since the indorsement of Gifford Pinchot by a state-wide non-partisan committee of local option and social workers at Harrisburg recently, the sentiment that the Progressive nominee is the one candidate who can defeat Penrose and his system in Pennsylvania has spread all over the state.

Additional evidence of the strong hold that the Pinchot candidacy has taken among voters who regard the defeat of Penrose as the important issue of the campaign comes from Centre county in the following message:

"Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 7.

"Resolved, by the Ministerial Association of Centre county, representing all the Christian denominations of the county, that in view of the political situation, present and prospective in the state of Pennsylvania, in order to effect the elimination of Boies Penrose and Penrosoism, the wise and right thing for Mr. Palmer to do at this juncture is to withdraw from the candidacy for United States senator in favor of Mr Pinchot."

The above resolution was unanimously adopted in session today.

WALTER FAY CARSON,
Secretary Ministerial Association of Centre county.

Items of Interest, Gathered Here and There, For The Boys Who Man The Trains

TRAINMEN MAY TRY THE TRAIN LIMIT LAW

In the event of the full crew law's being repealed in the next general assembly it is proposed by the trainmen's organization to introduce a car limit bill, the effects of this to be to limit the number of cars that may be placed inasingle train. The announcement comes from the general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in Philadelphia. The opinion prevails among the members of the various brotherhoods that the law will not be repealed . In this connection the general chairman made the following statement:

"The operation of the full crew law has been so satisfactory that its repeal is highly improbable It was enacted into law after most careful legislative investigation not only in this but in other states. The supreme court of the United States has twice passed upon the constitutionality of such laws, once in relation to the Arkansas act, and again when the Indiana act, was repealed. There is now pending a referendum on such a law in Missouri. Full crew laws are now in operation in about eighteen states and their value has been proved in all. The supreme court in Pennsylvania, except in certain departments supported our present law. In face of such convincing facts as these, it is unlikely the voter of the state will ask for the repeal of the measure on the Pennsylvania law books.

"Although the railroads contend the requirements of a full crew law is an unnecessary burden, it is a dire necessity under present-day conditions. Railroad discipline is so strict ,the working crews must observe so many borough and city ordinances in the operation of trains, that a full crew law is an absolute necessity for every train."

Railroads Are Fined

The agricultural department at Washington reports that fines imposed on railroads in August for the violation of the 28-hour law, regulating the transportation of cattle, amounted to $25,000. In July the aggregate of the fines was $9,001, and in June $4,972. More than half the penalties collected in August came from three roads, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Idle Cars Accumulate .

Siding and storage tracks along the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad are rapidly filling up with freight cars made idle by the present slump in business. Freight traffic is at a low ebb. Engines are also being stored both on the main line and branches. In the last week more than 1,200 cars have been stored on the Pennsylvania's big storage track between Petersburg, Pa., and Hollidaysburg, Pa. Most of these are of the new steel type cars that were used in the Western Pennsylvania district. At present 1,157 cars are stored along the Petersburg branch.

PROPOSED LICENSING OF PRACTICING ENGINEERS

Governor Tener appointed a commission in 1913 to suggest legislation looking toward the licensing of practicing civil engineers, as lawyers and doctors are licensed.

A meeting of the commission will be held in Harrisburg, at the rooms of the Engineers Society of Pennsylvania, today, at which any one interested is to appear.

From this section E. W. Hess expects to be there, and will also take part as a member of the nominating committee for the election of officers for the society for the coming year.

WAR MAPS FOR PROGRESS READERS

Valuable Aids to Understanding of European Situation

A HANDSOME PIECE OF WORK

With These Maps the Public Can Tell at a Glance the Location of the Cities and Towns Where the Battling Nations are Struggling for Supremacy—How Maps May be Procured.

In keeping with its determination to give the readers of the Progress the latest and best news of the great European war, the management of this paper has decided to distribute to the public at a nominal cost to the people an official map of the territory in which the big armies of the warring powers are fighting. With the aid of this map the citizen can trace accurately the movements of the armies and discover the scenes of battles as reported day by day in the news columns of the Progress.

This map is large, is printed in five colors, with the names and locations of the towns and cities, mountains, rivers and other data necessary to a complete understanding of the situation in the war zone. The map was originally made in Europe by the wax process, at once expensive and complete, and has been reproduced in this country on copperplate. The type is clear and the places sought by the man who is after information regarding the war are plainly marked. On the back of this map is to be found the latest and most authentic information regarding the nations now engaged in the conflict.

The Progress has been able to procure a number of these maps for distribution to those who wish to have an intelligent conception of the great events which are happening in Europe. To secure one of these maps the reader will cut the coupon from another page of this paper and present it, with ten cents, at the counter of the business office of the Progress and one of the maps will be handed to him. As the number of copies of the map which the Progress was able to get is limited it will be well for those who wish copies to call early.

The maps will be sent by mail either in town or out of town for 12 cents in coin, stamps or money order

They are really the most valuable maps of Europe that are in existence, and will prove a source of profit to those who wish to learn more than they know of the countries across the seas. If you wish to keep posted on the movements of the immense armies in the greatest conflict the world has ever known, get one of these maps at once.

Burgess Callahan desires the citizens of Clearfield to clean up about their premises before the snows of winter fall. He has issued the following proclamation:

To the Citizens of Clearfield:

Cleanliness is conductive to good health and good morals, and I wish to thank everybody for what has been accomplished in the past summer towards keeping our town clean, for we have not had a communicable disease for almost five weeks, which is a most creditable record.

Now I kindly ask you to clean up. Do not let the beautiful snow cover up your filth. Clean up! Clean up the lots, the front yards, back yards and all the alleys. Do not be afraid you pick up something you did not put there. Clean up everything and our people will rise up and call you blessed.

PINCHOT, FIGHTER FOR PEOPLE, SAYS SCRANTON EDITOR

Robert D. Towne Tells How State Will Gain by Electing Pike County Man

"Gifford Pinchot has acquired by actual work in the government service a knowledge of its working and of the needs of the people possessed by few men in American public life," says Robert D. Towne, editor of the Scranton Daily News.

"Mr. Pinchot has not only been long in the government service, but has been a life-long student of social and political economy, and is in full accord with the nation wide movement for the uplift of society and the improvement of the condition of the workers who create the wealth of the nation.

"It is in this respect that Pinchot differs most from Penrose. He stands for what the people of Pennsylvania want, while Penrose is and has been, during his career in the senate the special representative of the trusts and combinations that profit through governmental favors and fatten at the expense of the public.

Trained Public Servant.

"Gifford Pinchot stands first for the entire social and industrial program of the National Progressive platform, including a workmen's compensation law. He believes with all others who are interested in human welfare that the great transportation, manufacturing and building industries and [illegible] should bear the burden of [illegible] accidents.

[illegible] of a working day [illegible] and that the [illegible] by the workmen [illegible] but must [illegible] standard of [illegible] employ [illegible] and [illegible] country [illegible] wage [illegible] latter [illegible] on the ground that the conditions decencies of life should not be denied to the mothers of the country. He is also an advocate of an effective game save law and its rigorous enforcement, contending that [illegible] pigeons that prey [illegible] should [illegible] struck by [illegible] save without redress.

A Vigorous Fighter.

"Gifford Pinchot also stands for the initiative, referendum and recall, which means that the national and state legislatures shall be subservient to the will of the people. His opponent, Senator Penrose, is openly opposed to the principle involved in this idea, standing with ex-President Taft in support of the view that ours is a government of the people by a representative few of the people, whose right to enact laws without consulting the people who must live under them may not be questioned.

"Mr. Pinchot also stands for equal suffrage for men and women, in the belief that the influence of the women is needed in public affairs. He is an ardent advocate of local option on the question of licensing the liquor traffic, which simply means home rule, or the right of the people of each county and large city to regulate the traffic as they may see fit.

Well Represents the People.

"The Progressive candidate is also an advocate of the spread of knowledge by the state to all its citizens, old and young, to help them in solving their private and public problems, and opening the school buildings to the people.

"Gifford Pinchot is not only committed to the advocacy of the principles and purposes here enumerated, but has the courage and capacity as well as the determination and legislative skill to promote them effectually if elected. In exchanging Penrose for Pinchot the voters of the state not only take no risk but are certain to choose a representative in the senate who will be a credit to the state, and who will represent all the people, and not a few of them."

PENNA. LEADS COUNTRY IN EXTRAVAGANT ROAD BUILDING

In 1913 there was a great outcry in New York state because of the scandalous extravagance of the political machine in building roads.

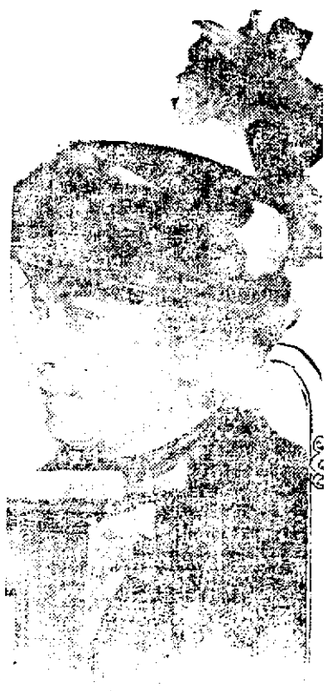
The political machine in New York, through its roads department, built roads at a cost of $12,500 per mile.

THE ROADS IN PENNSYLVANIA UNDER THE BIGELOW DEPARTMENT HAVE COST THE TAXPAYERS $19,322.15 a mile.

Ohio's roads cost $8,383 per mile.

Maryland's roads cost $9,986.62 per mile.

If Penrose and Brumbaugh are elected the same gang will run the highway department.



Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Nelson L. Pollard, by confessing her guilt, has cleared up a poison plot [illegible] which [illegible] trouble in [illegible] the past seven years.

IS HE A STRADDLER OR DOESN'T HE KNOW?

The "Personal Liberty" party is the ticket of the liquor men of this state.

Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh is the candidate for governor on that ticket.

He had it in his power to withdraw as a candidate from that ticket, but he did not do so.

Besides Dr. Brumbaugh, the "Personal Liberty" party has as its candidates Boies Penrose, the avowed candidate of the liquor people; Frank McClain of Lancaster, also an avowed candidate of the liquor people; John R. K. Scott of Philadelphia, also a liquor candidate, and other men known widely as liquor candidates.

Some days ago Vance McCormick, Washington-Democratic candidate for governor, insisted that any man who ran with him on the same ticket should withdraw from the "Personal Liberty" party ticket.

McCormick stands for local option and against liquor.

Brumbaugh had the same chance, but preferred to stand with Penrose, McClain and the other liquor candidates.

And yet Brumbaugh says he is sincerely for local option!

Which Will He Fool?

The liquor interests are practically a unit in their opposition to local option. They are well-nigh unanimous in their support of Dr. Brumbaugh, who is pledged to local option. Some temperance folks are supporting him on the strength of his pledge, but we submit that if he is elected governor, it would be absolutely necessary for him to double cross either the liquor men to whom he will owe his election or to those temperance advocates who have supported him on his word that he would work for and sign a local option bill.—American Issue.

GERMAN ATTACKS GROW LESS VIOLENT

ALLIES CLAIM TOO HAVE MADE SOME PROCRESS

But the Battle in Belgium And France Not Yet Decisive

AUSTRIANS CLAIM 10,000 PRUSSIANS

In East Prussia the Germans Counter Offensive Has Been Checked by the Russians—Germans Unsuccessful in Night Attack at Caronne, Losing 2000 to the Allies' 200—Kaiser's Troops Making Strenuous Efforts to Gain a Foothold on the Western Bank of the Yser, Being Reinforced—The Fighting All Along the Line is Severe.

(By International News Service)

Paris, Oct .28.—It is officially announced that the German offensive in Belgium has become less violent, and it is claimed the position of the allies is maintained and that progress has been made between Cambrai and Arras, in France, and northeast of Yser in Belgium.

The Germans made violent night attacks north of the Aisne, endeavoring to assume the offensive there.

Locked in Death Grap

Although the Germans lost ground near Dixmude, the allies and the invaders are still locked in a death grapple along the Yser.

The fighting there is of unprecedented ferocity.

A Bavarian prince, said to be on the firing line at Yser, was wounded.

Russians Progressing

In Galicia the Russians are progressing to south of Sambor. In East Prusisa the Germans' partial counter offensive has been checked.

The Germans were unsuccessful in their night attack in the Craonne region. The fight there cost 2,000 killed and wounded to the allies 200.

Germans Not Repulsed

London, Oct. 28.—An Amsterdam dispatch states that the battle in northwestern Belgium is not near a decision yet and that the Germans have not been repulsed decisively, but are making strong efforts to obtain a foothold on the western bank of the Yser, with reinforcements. Fighting is very severe. Numerous buildings have been bombarded on both sides successfully by aeroplanes.

10,000 Russians Captured

Vienna, Oct 2[illegible]—The war office says the Austrians captured 10,000 Russians with a great quantity of munitions of war.

The Central Galicia situation is unchanged.

SHALL WE PAY THE ISSUE

In 1905 our Borough started with a debt of $[illegible] raised on the joint credit of the board of directors. This money was used to complete the building and furnish it.

In 1907 this note was reduced $6,000 through a state appropriation for this purpose, and today, with accrued interest, stands at about $12,-

If we get together and pay off this debt, Mr. A. W. Iler will give the hospital $25,000. $8,000 has already been subscribed.

Shall we not all get together in the campaign and raise the remaining $4,-000.

Let us face the issue.

FAREWELL RECEPTION GIVEN BY FIRST BIBLE CLASS

The [illegible] Bible class of the West Side M. E. church held a reception last evening in honor of Mrs. Al Orr. The reception was held in the church and seventeen members of the class were present. Mrs. Orr will leave in a few days to spend the winter in Florida and will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Nichols and their family.

The evening was spent in a pleasant social way and a delicious lunch was served, after which the class sang "God Be With You Until We Meet Again" and a few fitting remarks were made by L. S. Patchout, teacher of the class.

Mrs. Orr will be greatly missed from her place in the church and the bible class, as she has been an enthusiastic worker and interesting member.

TRAINING A CHILD IMPORTANT DUTY

Prof. Zerfoss Delivers Address Before the Woman's Club

EFFORT WILL ELIMINATE EVIL

Conditions Existing in Clearfield Which Should Not be Permitted by the Citizens—Charity is Only Part of the Work That Lies Before the Women of the Town.

The Woman's club held an interesting and enthusiastic meeting in the club rooms last evening. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. George Reed, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Charles Kurtz.

Prof. Zerfoss, superintendent of city schools, addressed the club. He said that a ladies' organization such as the Woman's club means much to a community in social betterment. There are two ways to attack; one is to find a remedy for an evil, the other is to eliminate the evil so that there shall be no need for a remedy. "I believe that the evil can be eliminated with persistent effort. I believe that Providence did not intend such social conditions as exist. The social unit is the individual. Every individual is an infant; it is there that the work should begin.

"The child is not born into the world in sin, but pure. It is the work of humanity to keep the child pure. The age from birth to seven years is the most critical part of the character building of the boy or girl. Science has proven that only one-tenth of the mind is conscious; the rest subconscious. The subconscious mind is most active during the first seven years. Subconscious impressions are the most lasting. Education can bring a veneer of culture, but the test of manhood or womanhood can only be stood by the child who has had proper environment during the first seven years of its life.

"We are fulfilling our largest social function when we remove the evils which exist in many homes and cause the child to be ruined before it is ten years old. Every child has the right to be well born, well bred and well educated. Society should step in and see that such things are so.

"Women are the highest factor in the morality of the world. A club made up of women should multiply that power. There are conditions existing in Clearfield under which children are living that should not be allowed to exist. It is no use to hand out charity to these families as long as society does not go deeper into the matter. Children who live in homes where they degenerate morally and physically should be looked after and taken from such homes. That is the work of special organizations such as this."

Prof. Zerfoss's remarks were well appreciated by the club and ways of eliminating conditions that are known to exist in several Clearfield homes were discussed.

The plans for a Christmas for the children of Clearfield who would not have one otherwise were discussed, and the club asks that every housewife who has discarded toys lay them aside for the club during house-cleaning time.

The club year book is expected to be finished and ready for the next meeting, which will be held in two weeks.

MINE ACCIDENTS DECREASE, ACCORDING TO REPORTS

A report issued by James E. Roderick, chief of the miners throughout the state, for the quarter ending September 30, shows that the fatalities in the mines have been decreased greatly during the last three months, both in the bituminous and anthracite regions.

During July, August and September of this year, 102 fatal accidents occurred in the coal regions, or [illegible] than during the same period in 1913. In the anthracite regions during the last quarter, 137 fatalities occurred. 19 less than during July, August and September of 1913.

SLEDGE HAMMER BLOWS DELIVERED BY ROOSEVELT

He Deals With Penroseism In a Manner to Please The People

GREAT CROWDS HEAR HIM IN ALLL TOWNS

Colonel Roosevelt Tells His Audiences to Smash the Penrose Machine—Says Brumbaugh is Backed by the Bosses—The Only Way to Beat Penrose is to Vote For Gifford Pinchot—Celebrated His Birthday by Urging the Voters to Get Rid of the Political Machine Which Has Disgraced the State of Pennsylvania.

Altoona, Oct. 28—Colonel Roosevelt spent the happiest birthday of his life in the western Pennsylvania counties yesterday, and the workers in the steel mills gave him a birthday reception which fairly rivaled the tremendous welcome the anthracite miners accorded him in the eastern counties Monday.

The day boded well for the success of Gifford Pinchot's candidacy for the senate. He is the only man to beat Penrose, Colonel Roosevelt declared.

"Little Woolly Lamb"

In the very kind of birthday humor, the colonel delivered one sledge-hammer blow after another at Penrose, Penroseism and the whole Penrose machine, including Brumbaugh, "the most innocent little woolly lamb on the Personal Liberty' party ticket, "the come-on for Penrose and the stool-pigeon for Penroseism."

And fully 40,000 people cheered the Roosevelt delivery all through Allegheny, Washington, Fayette, Westmoreland, Cambria and Blair counties.

So busy was Roosevelt with Penrose and Penroseism from early morning till shortly before midnight that his only birthday lunch was a glass of milk and a sandwich taken in a day coach on a short midday jump from Pennsylvania into West Virginia and back again.

Huge Outdoor Demonstrations

Besides addressing tremendous outdoor gatherings at short stops of the Roosevelt special train at thirteen scheduled places the colonel addressed 6000 persons packed into the Johnstown auditorium, 10,000 people crowded into Fountain square and adjoining streets in Uniontown and two big mass meetings of 5000 persons in Altoona theatres last night.

But as on the day before among the coal miners in the east, so among the steel workers of the west, the Roosevelt schedule was smashed and three more meetings were forced on him. At Point Marion, a town of 1800 persons, 1200 people got together at the railroad tracks and compelled the special train hurrying back from West Virginia with Colonel Roosevelt to stop and give them a chance to greet him.

Denounced Penrose

The same happened at Fairchance and at Youngwood. Along the whole route Colonel Roosevelt denounced Penrose as the representative of the worst and basest influences in America. He denounced his alliance with bipartisan liquor Democrats and stirred his audiences to tumultuous enthusiasm when he paused and, with special emphasis, added:

"And I make no distinction between Penrose and Brumbaugh.

"Mr. Brumbaugh has taken his stand with Penrose and Penroseism. He is on the ticket with Penrose and with Senator Crow, the man who killed the workmen's compensation act in the last session of the legislature, and as he stands with Penrose and Crow, so Brumbaugh must fall with them. We must smash the whole Penrose machine and everybody connected with it. That's the only way to deal with them.

Vote for Pinchot

"Penrose's idea of government is government of the people by the machine boss for the special interests. We must drive Penrose and all men like Penrose out of the public life, and the only man who can beat Penrose is Gifford Pinchot. Mr. Palmer is not in the race at all. The liquor Democrats have left Palmer for Penrose, and the temperance Democrats have left Palmer for Pinchot as the strongest man and the only man in the field who can lick Penrose."

Wherever Colonel Roosevelt goes he introduces Gifford Pinchot personally, and the Progressive candidate for United States senator from Pennsylvania receives an ovation that is second only to that tendered the colonel himself.

The schedule for Thursday is as follows:

Tyrone, meeting at railroad station, 7 A. M. Leave, 7.15 A. M.

Huntingdon, 7.45 A. M.; leave 7.50 A. M.

Mount Union, 7.59 A. M.; leave 8.02 A. M.

WHY PINCHOT WILL WIN

The solid Washington Party vote is behind him.

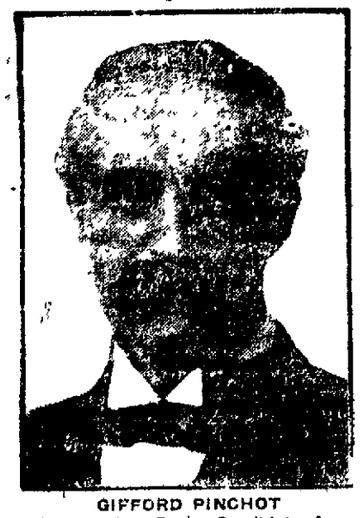
200,000 members of church and good government leagues, representing all political parties, have unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

Anti-saloon forces throughout the state in convention at Harrisburg overwhelming endorsed Pinchot.

National Republicans such as Harry L. Stimson, Secretary of War under President Taft; Herbert Knox Smith, formerly United States Commissioner of Corporations; Congressman William Kent of California, Lawrence O. Murray, Controller of the Currency for five years; Herbert Parsons of New York and other leaders have called on the Republicans of Pennsylvania for the sake of their own party to defeat Penrose and elect Gifford Pinchot.

Powerful Republican newspapers, such as the New York Tribune, the historic mouthpiece of the Republican party, call on the Republicans of Pennsylvania for their party's sake to defeat Penrose and elect Pinchot.

Leading National Democrats, such as Herbert Quick, leader of the Country Life movement; Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, head of the Pure Food movement; Charles S. Barrett, president of the Farmers' Union, an organization of 3,000,000 farmers, and Herbert S. Bigelow have endorsed Pinchot, and declared that he is the one man who should be elected United States Senator from Pennsylvania.



GIFFORD PINCHOT
Washington Party Candidate for U S Senator

Labor leaders endorse Pinchot. In the western part of the state James H. Maurer, president of the State Federation of Labor, spoke from the platform with Pinchot.

Representative citizens of Huntingdon and other counties unanimously endorsed Pinchot and asked Palmer to withdraw.

The annual convention of the Epworth League of the Northwestern district of Pennsylvania, meeting at Norristown, unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

The East Pennsylvania conference of the United Brethren church unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

The Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association gives Pinchot great ovation and hails him as "Our next Senator."

The Pittsburgh M. E. conference unanimously endorsed Pinchot.

The East Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran church endorses Pinchot.

County good government leagues, county ministerial Associations, county local option leagues, county anti-saloon leagues, county "Billy" Sunday associations, have endorsed Pinchot all over the state.

THE WEAKNESS OF MR. PALMER

Palmer cannot even poll the full Democratic votes. The Donnelly-Ryan "Old Guard" Democrats of Philadelphia are for Penrose.

The Duffy "Old Guard" Democrats of Pittsburgh are against Palmer and for Penrose.

The Old Guard Democrats of the coal regions have repudiated Palmer's leadership and will stand with the Donnelly-Ryan crowd of Philadelphia against Palmer.

The J. K. P. Hall "Old Guard" Democrats of Elk county are against Palmer.

The good government forces of the state in convention at Harrisburg have asked Palmer to quit the race because Pinchot is the stronger man.

Voters allied with good government leagues, anti-saloon leagues, church associations and other good government forces have joined their state body in asking Palmer to quit in favor of Gifford Pinchot, who is a stronger man.

Voters of Warren county, Philadelphia county, Huntingdon county, and other counties who want to see Penrose beaten, have adopted resolutions asking Palmer to quit, so that all the forces of good government can center on Gifford Pinchot and make the defeat of Penrose absolutely sure.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your Kidneys Occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, say a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become over-worked from the strain get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfastt and in a few days your kidneys will act fine This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

BRUMBAUGH BAND PLAYS HYMNS FOR LIQUOR GANGSTERS

Tenderloin Workers, Strong Arm Men and Penrose Heelers in Philadelphia Smile When "Martin" Makes Bid for Votes of Decent People

Four years ago when John K. Tener was the Penrose and liquor combine's choice for governor, the political thugs and heelers of Philadelphia went the limit. They stuffed the registration lists, they put "phantom" voters in the machine wards, they used the police and firemen to intimidate citizens.

At every political meeting the bands played "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

Since then times have changed.

Penrose has lost the city government of Philadelphia and Mayor Blankenburg has taken the police and firemen out of politics. The director of public safety has purged the registration lists. Phantom voters can't be used to stuff the ballot boxes and outvote independent citizens.

Gang Would Be Angels.

Also a change has come over the McNichol and Vare ward workers.

When the Penrose machine and the liquor dealers nominated Martin G. Brumbaugh for governor, the politicial strong arm workers were told to be "careful."

A few days ago when the Brumbaugh banner was raised in front of the McNichol and Vare office building, the political workers from the Bloody Fifth ward, the tenderloin politicians from McNichol's district, the heelers from the river wards and all the gangsters and liquor dealers' workers were ordered to line up on Broad street to swell the crowd at the banner raising.

Liquor Men Heard Hymns.

It was the most peculiar political meeting ever held in Philadelphia.

The crowd of political workers were the same old tenderloin hangers-on, the same saloon hangers-on, the same strong arm men from the gang wards, but Mr. Brumbaugh who was glad to have their support was playing a game to the respectable elements of the city.

While the gang workers looked on, the band played "Onward Christian Soldiers," and "Come, All Ye Faithful." The Penrose and liquor politicians smiled a little at this.

Then the meeting was opened by a mission worker among the down and outs. Letters were read from ministers and from John Wanamaker who teaches a Sunday school class, lauding Brumbaugh.

To cap the climax, the name "Republican" did not appear on the Brumbaugh banner, when it was strung across the street.

"He's a Trimmer," They Said.

The whole air of the meeting, the hymns, the religious marching songs, the mission workers' harangue, the letters from ministers and Sunday school teachers, read in the face of the crowd of liquor men, political gangsters, Penrose heelers, strong arm men from the tenderloin wards, and representatives of the worst elements in corrupt politics, whose candidate Brumbaugh is, left a bad taste in the mouths of citizens.

The Penrose workers themselves hated the proceedings.

"We give him the votes, and he knows it," one of them said. "He's just a trimmer."

PINCHOT, THE BETTER MAN

When Gifford Pinchot was head of one of the government departments at Washington, employing three thousand persons he originated and put into effect a system of insurance whereby the families of men who were injured or killed at work were protected.

When he found that this was not sufficient he plunged into the fight for the workmen's compensation act for government employes, and did not cease his efforts until the law was passed.

The thousands of men who now work for the United States government and whose wives and children are protected in the event of death or injury owe much to Gifford Pinchot.

Boies Penrose refused to vote for the workmen's compensation when it came up at Washington. Under his influence the political machine in this state defeated the workmen's compensation [illegible] Pennsylvania Legislature [illegible] in this state who are killed [illegible] injured are not thoroughly protected.

The voters in Pennsylvania have before them these two men, one Gifford Pinchot, a conscientious and vigorous advocate of all fair and just legislation for workmen, the other, Penrose, a servant of the special interests, who has helped to defeat important legislation needed by workmen.

As between Penrose and Pinchot the working men of Pennsylvania should not hesitate a minute to cast their vote for Pinchot.

The Trey O' Hearts

A Novelized Version of the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name Produced by the Universal Film Co.

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Author of "The Fortune Hunter," "The Brass Bowl," "The Black Bag," etc.

Illustrated with Photographs from the Picture Production

Copyright, 1914, by Louis Joseph Vance

His first appreciated warning came when the surface of the desert seemed to lift and shake like the top of a canvas tent in a gale. At the same time a mighty gust of wind swept athwart the waste, hot as a furnace-blast. In a trice dust enveloped man and horse, a stifling cloud of superheated particles that stung the flesh like a myriad needles. And then darkness fell, the twilight of hades, a copper-colored pall. Nothing remained visible beyond arm's length.

Blinded, half suffocated, unspeakably dismayed and bewildered, the broncho swung round, back to the blast, and refused to budge another inch.

Himself more than half-dazed, but still hounded by his nightmare vision of Judith, Alan dismounted to escape being torn bodily from the saddle by that hellish sand-blast, and seizing the bridle sought to draw the horse on with him.

He wasted his strength in that endeavor: the animal balked, planted its hoofs deep in the sand, stiffened its legs and resisted with the stubbornness of a rock; then, of a sudden, jerked his head smartly, snapped the bridle from his grasp and flung away, scudding before the storm.

Pursuit was out of the question: indeed, the bridle was barely torn from his hand before Alan lost sight of the broncho.

"Rose—Miss Trine—Reason With the Madman—"

For a moment he stood rooted in consternation as in a bog—with an arm upthrown across his face.

Then the thought of Judith recurred. . . .

Head bended and shoulders rounded, he began to forge a way into the teeth of the sandstorm.

How long he fought on, pitting his strength against the elements, cannot be reckoned.

In the end he stumbled blindly down a slight decline and was abruptly conscious that he had in some way found shelter from the full force of the wind.

He staggered on another yard or two, breathing more freely, and blundered into a rough-ribbed wall of rock—some sporadic outcrop, he understood, whose bulk stood between him and the storm.

He thought to rest for a time, until the storm had spent its greatest strength; but as he laid his shoulder gratefully against the rock and scrubbed the dust from his smarting eyes he saw what he at first conceived to be a hallucination: Judith Trine standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and come quickly nearer.

"Alan! You came for me! You followed me, through all this!"

He threw off her hand with a bitter laugh—that was like the croaking of a raven as it issued from his bone-dry throat—and in momentary possession of hysteric madness, reeled away from the woman and the shelter of the rock and delivered himself anew to the mercy of the dust-storm.

CHAPTER XLII.

Open Mutiny.

Though she had been schooled to hold the very name of Law in loathing unspeakable and to think of Alan as a mortal enemy and as one whose death alone could properly requite the cruel injury that had been done her father; and though the man himself had laughed to scorn her first involuntary confession of that love for him which now consumed her being with its insatiable fires, she swallowed her chagrin and followed him with the solicitude of one whose love can recognize no wrong in its object. Through all the remainder of that day of terror she was never far from his side.

With the meekness of the strong, she made herself his shadow. And she was now the stronger, for she had had more than an hour's rest beside the waterhole, which he had missed on the way of that rocky windbreak. Sooner or later his strength must fail him and he would need her; till then she was content to bide her hour.

It befell presently in startling fashion; she was not a yard behind him when he vanished abruptly.

But the next moment Judith herself was trembling on the crumbling brink of an arroyo of depth and width indeterminable in the obscurity of the duststorm. Down this, evidently, Alan had fallen in his dizzy blindness.

She found him insensible, lying with an arm bent under him in a pose frightfully suggestive of dislocation. Yet when she turned him on his back and released the arm, he made no sign to indicate that the movement had caused him the slightest pain.

There was a slight cut upon his brow, a bruise about his left temple. She tore linen from her bosom, beneath her coarse flannel shirt, and with sparing aid from the canteen, washed the cut clean and bandaged it.

Then seeing that the storm held with fury unabated, she rose, reconnoitered and returned to exert all her strength and drag the unconscious man across the dry bed of that ancient water-course and under the lee of its farther bank.

There, sitting, she pillowed his head upon her lap, and bending over him made her body an additional shelter to him from the swirling clouds of dust.

And for hours on end Judith nursed him there, scarce daring to move save to minister to his needs, bathing his fevered brow and moistening his parched lips and throat.

In the course of the first hour she was once startled by the spectral vision through the driving sheets of dust of a horse that plodded up the arroyo, bearing two riders on its back.

Weary with the weight of its double burden, it went slowly and passed so near to Judith that she was able to recognize the features of her sister and Tom Barcus.

Be sure she made never a sign to catch their attention.

Within the next succeeding hour the coppery light lost something of its hot brilliance, took on a darker shade, and then one darker still. Twilight stole athwart the desert, turning its heat to chill, its light to violet.

Growing more intense, the cold eventually roused the sleeping man.

And hardly had his eyes unclosed and looked up into the eyes of Judith bending over him than he started up and out of her embrace, got unsteadily upon his feet and after a moment of pause, watching her rise in turn, strode away—or, rather, staggered—with the gesture of exorcism.

Uncomplaining, hugging her newborn humility to her with the ecstasy of the anchorite his horse-hair shirt, Judith followed him patiently, at a little distance.

Not far from where he had rested there was a break in the overhanging wall of the arroyo. Through this he scrambled painfully, reaching the level of the desert only after cruel effort, the unheeded woman at his heels.

A brief pause there afforded both time to regain their breath and survey the desert for signs of assistance: it offered none, other than what they might accomplish through their own exertions. For leagues in any quarter it stretched without a break other than the black cleft of the arroyo, gleaming a bleached and deathly white in the moonshine—like the face of a frozen world.

With tacit consent both turned that way, Alan leading, Judith his pertinacious shadow, with never a word or sign between them to prove that either was aware of the other's company.

But this was a state of affairs that could not long endure. Judith had the price to pay for her own trials, suffering and privation: the strain began to tell sorely upon her. She reeled slightly as she walked, weaving a winding trail across and across the straighter line of footprints that marked Alan's course through the ordered pattern of the powdered sagebrush.

And of a sudden she collapsed.

Instinct alone made Alan glance over-shoulder: for she had made no sound whatever.

He turned and came directly back to her, knelt beside her, lifted her head, pillowed it gently on his arm and plied her in turn with the dregs of the canteen.

With a sigh, a stifled moan and a little shiver, she revived.

He helped her gently to regain her feet, passed an arm round her.

In this fashion they struggled on in strange, dumb companionship of misery and wonder.

Thus an hour passed; and for all their desperate struggles neither could see that the light on the mountainside was a yard the nearer.

Behind them other lights appeared, two staring yellow eyes that peered up over the horizon, seemed to pause a time in search of the two, then leaped out directly toward them.

Of this they were altogether ignorant; and when a deep, droning sound disturbed the desert silence like the purring of some gigantic cat, both ascribed it to the drumming of their laboring pulses.

The two lights were not a mile behind them when, silently, without a sign to warn the girl, Alan released her, took a step apart and dropped as if shot.

Instantly she was kneeling by his side. But in the act of bending over him she drew back and remained for several moments motionless, staring at those twin glaring eyes, sweeping down upon them with all the speed attainable by a six-cylinder touring car negotiating a trackless desert.

When Judith did move it was not to comfort Alan. On the contrary, her first act was to draw from her pocket a heavy, blunt-nosed revolver, break it at the breech and blow its barrel clear of dust. Her hand went next to the holster on Alan's hip. From this she extracted his Colt's .45, treating it as she had the other. Then she crouched low above the man she loved, as if thinking perhaps to escape notice from the occupants of the motorcar.

If that were her thought, it was bred of an idle hope. Alan had chosen to fall in the middle of a wide space so arid that not even sagebrush had ventured to take root there. When the glare of the headlights fell upon them it was inevitable that discovery should follow. The motor car stopped within twenty feet. Three men jumped out and ran toward the pair, leaving two in the car—the chauffeur and one who occupied a corner of the rear seat: an aged man with the face of a damned soul, doomed for a little time to live upon this earth in the certain knowledge of his damnation.

As this happened, Judith Trine leaped to her feet and stood over the body of Alan, a revolver poised in either hand.

"Halt!" she ordered imperatively. "Hands up!"

The three who had alighted obeyed without a moment's hesitation; her father's creatures, they knew the daughter's temper far too well to dream of opposing her will.

In the six hands that were silhouetted against the headlights' radiance, three revolvers glimmered; but at her command all three dropped harmlessly to the earth.

Then, sharply, "Stand back two paces!" she required.

They humored her unanimously.

Darting forward, she picked up and pocketed the three weapons, then with one of her own singled out the men she named.

"Now, Marrophat—and you, Hicks—pick Mr. Law up and carry him into the car. And treat him gently, mind! If one of you lifts a finger to harm him, that one shall answer to me."

Still none ventured to dispute her. The two men designated, without a sign of disinclination, stepped forward. One lifted Alan Law by the shoulders; the other took the legs. Between them they bore him with every care toward the motor car.

But now a second will manifested itself. The man in the rear seat lifted up a weirdly sonorous voice:

"Stop!" he cried. "Stop this nonsense! Drop that man! Judith, I command you—"

October 28, 1914

Good evening! Did you put on the heavier kind this morning?

The Personal Liberty party is scented with old rye.

Christmas shopping, to be done properly, should be started early.

A vote for Washington party candidates is a protest against Penrose, rum and injustice.

Paying one dollar to get a shot at a bunny rabbit is pretty expensive sport, most hunters will affirm.

Probably if the allies were to retreat into France they might have a better chance to whip their foes.

Lest you forget, now is the time to set out your Made in America plants in order that they may thrive in the spring.

A. Mitchell Palmer is due to receive the greatest shock of his life when he reads the election returns next Wednesday.

Cold weather brings its hardships to all. In this town it will prevent the usual evening parades of the prettiest girls in the state.

A vote for Washington party candidates for assembly will be a vote to insure the passage of beneficient laws by the state legislature next year.

If every voter who is opposed to Penroseism will vote for Gifford Pinchot next Tuesday the state will be rid of that political incubus, Penrose.

Still the graveyard yawns for some of those people who will do nothing for the towns in which they live or allow others to do what should be done.

What a salary the Republican party would be willing to pay the author of war news along the Vistula if it could get him to make pre-election predictions.

Colonel Roosevelt was fifty-six years of age Tuesday, and celebrated the day urging the people to overthrow the evils attached to the state government.

Noah Webster was not equal to the task of finding a word suitable to the state or mind of the thousands of hunters who return from the woods and fields empty-handed.

All of the proposed amendments to the state constitution should be approved by the people at the polls next Tuesday, for all of them are worthy of the support of the voters.

Canadians are not badly frightened over the threat of a German invasion of the dominion. Germany has about as big a task as she can attend to over on the other side of the big pond.

Berlin declares that prisoners from the armies of the allies are well treated in Germany. In Munich, however, the prisoners are placed in pens and exhibited to the Bavarians as curiosities, an admission being charged those who wish to gaze on the "barbarians." The lie factory in Berlin is working overtime.

TIME TO CLEAN HOUSE

Not only the ousting of Penrose from the leadership of the twin political machine in Pennsylvania through his defeat as a candidate for United States senator is desired by the honest people of the state, but the complete overthrow of the machine which has for so many years ruled at the state capital. The time has come for a cleaning of the state house, for the eviction of the heads of departments who have been entirely too willing to obey the orders of Penrose and for the discharge from public service of the army of employes who use their official positions to aid in the perpetuation of Penroseism and its attendant ills.

The people have little knowledge of the actual condition of affairs in the several departments of the state government. There are heads of departments who are serving the people loyally and ably, such as Dr. Dixon, head of the health department; Auditor General Powell, but, these are exceptions to the general rule. The highway department, the fisheries department, the game commission, the hundred and one sub-divisions of the state government are in charge of men who look to the Penrose machine for their orders, and as a consequence the public's business is neglected and the state treasury is depleted to meet the demands upon it for salaries for work either not performed or done in a perfunctory manner.

There is need of house cleaning at Harrisburg. There is need of new men at the head of the state government, in the senate and in the house. This need can be filled by the election of anti-Penrose candidates for every state office and every seat in the state senate and house. There can never be any change in the methods of conducting the affairs of the state so long as Penrose is boss of the government and of the state legislature. The only hope of bringing about the needed change in the executive and legislative departments is by defeating the candidates of the Penrose machine. Vote for the Washington candidates, who are pledged to bring about better conditions at Harrisburg.

RUM AN ISSUE

It has only lately that the Penrose Republicans have discovered that rum is a very important issue in the present state campaign. In past years Penrose and the liquor element had things their own way and carried elections at will. The people looked upon liquor as a necessary evil—a natural ally of the politician. But things have changed. The man who now depends upon the liquor element for support in his campaign is certain to run up against the decent-minded voters of the state with sad results to himself.

Whatever views the average man may have on the liquor question he does not desire to have a close friend of the whiskey trust and the rum seller make the laws of the state. Even men who drink do not approve of the proposition that the liquor interests shall have control of the law-making power of the state and nation. It is because of these things that the people of Penn-sylvania look with disfavor upon the Penrose candidates, who have received their chief support from the liquor interests and who count upon the liquor vote to elect them to the offices to be filled this year.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president, champion of political reform, is in Pennsylvania, speaking in behalf of the Washington party ticket. From the time Colonel Roosevelt entered the state from New Jersey he has met with ovation after ovation, the people in the towns he has visited greeting him with enthusiasm as sincere as it is spontaneous. The Colonel has met thousands o fvoters, and everywhere he has been assured that he has as many friends to lay as he has ever had.

Colonel Roosevelt's mission in the Keystone state is to aid in the election of Gifford Pinchot and the whole Washington party ticket. He has been very much gratified by the fact that the sentiment of the people of the state in favor of progressive politics has grown stronger than it was itics has grown stronger than it was polled such a large vote that it is now in second place among the political organizations of Pennsylvania. It is believed that Colonel Roosevelt's visit to this state will clinch the election of Gifford Pinchot and the overthrow of the Penrose machine.

WASHINGTON PARTY MEETINGS

Beginning Monday Washington party meetings, to be addressed by Guy B. Mayo and others will be held at the following places:

Wednesday evening, Oct. 28—Madera.
Thursday evening, Oct. 29—Osceola Mills.

More Republicans Who Repudiate Boies Penrose

Following are the expressions of several more Republicans whose consciences will not permit them to support Penrose:

David M. Rankin, of Westmoreland count, president of the Lutheran laymen's movement, a Republican for more than 45 years, says:

"I am an ardent supporter of Gifford Pinchot for election to the United States senate because he is sound on the tariff question, and his candidacy is fully representative of the best interests of all the people. From the standpoint of a Republican of more than forty-five years I know of no good reason why I could honorably support Boies Penrose as against Gifford Pinchot."

George W. Thompson, of Vuena Vista, a Republican, says:

"He believes in a protective tariff—one that protects the common workman as well as the millionaire manufacturer."

W. E. Schnee, of Montgomery Lycoming county, a Republican, says:

"He is of the type of Clay, Lincoln and McKinley, and when men like Roosevelt, Lindsay, Wiley, Beveridge, Mitchell, etc., praise and support him it convinces me that Gifford Pinchot would be far superior to either Penrose or P[illegible] as a United States senator [illegible] Pennsylvania."

Dr. John A. Campbell, of Williamsport, a Republican, says:

"The vast majority of both capitalists and laborers in Pennsylvania have always stood opposed to free [illegible] and favored a protective tariff. Upon this issue Pinchot stands, more than any other candidate, for what the rank and file of the voters of this state need."

THE HOSPITAL FUND

Clearfield citizens are asked to contribute four thousand dollars to complete the fund which is being raised by the trustees of the Clearfield hospital for the purpose of liquidating the standing indebtedness of that institution that they may take advantage of the generous offer of Asbury W. Lee to give the hospital five thousand dollars a year for five years, provided this old debt is cancelled.

Four thousand dollars does not appear to be a very large amount for the prosperous citizens of Clearfield to give to a worthy cause. The hospital is doing most excellent work in this community, and this work should not be hampered for the lack of funds. Mr. Lee's five thousand dollars a year will go far towards helping to meet the running expenses of the hospital and his proposition is one which ought to appeal to every citizen of not only the borough, but of every town and village in the county.

WORK OF CONGRESS AT LONG SESSION

Repeal of Canal Toll Exemption by the Democrats

APPROPR'TED $1,115,908,777

The second session of the sixty-third congress has been remarkable in many ways. It is the longest session ever held. It has heard more speeches and piled up a larger record than any other previous session in the history of the United States. The Congressional Record will have 20,000 pages; whereas the greatest number heretofore was 13,000 pages. The session has done the following important things:

Passed the federal reserve act, revising the banking and surrency laws.

Repealed the exemption clause of the Panama canal act, thereby imposing tolls upon American coastwise ships.

Passed the Clayton anti-trust act, supplementing the Sherman anti-trust law, making guilt personal.

Passed the bill creating the federal trade commission.

Provided $35,000,000 for a government railroad in Alaska.

Provided for the American registry of foreign built ships.

Received more than 5,000 nominations from the president.

Ratified twenty-six arbitration treaties.

Appropriated $1,115,908,777.26 for the fiscal year 1915.

Adopted a resolution justifying the president in sending troops to Mexico.

Appropriated $500,000 to bring Americans out of the war zone in Europe.

Broke up the lobby.

Passed the alley bill, which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had urged, to clean up the alley sections of Washington.

Anyone wishing to take up a business course in the evening will please write for particulars. P. O. Box 184, Clearfield. 2t

GUNBOAT SMITH OUT OF THE "WHITE HOPE" CLASS

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

(Special to the Progress.)

The inevitable has happened.

Gunboat Smith was lured into the ring against a real fighter in real condition and Gunboat Smith was battered to a pulp in the first two rounds and sent down and out for the full count in the third.

The suspicion that many had for a year or more that Smith, as a fighter, was a joke proposition has been confirmed. And when Sam Langford sent Smith to the mat in Boston the other night he crushed any ambitions that Smith may have had of becoming the champion heavyweight of the world.

Smith put up a few good fights but he never put up a real exhibition. He neither looked like, nor acted like a man of championship calibre. He was lucky—that's all. He managed to stay on his feet against a few real foes, but he managed to turn that trick because he was shifty on his feet—because he kept as far away from Well aimed punches as he could.

Something like eight or nine months ago Smith fought Langford and the newspaper critics gave the fight to Smith on points. The "victory" made Smith prouder than ever. And it made the general public believe that Smith really was a fighter. But one thing that the public didn't know about that fight was the fact that Langford was about 30 pounds overweight, and so bulky that he had trouble moving about the ring.

"Smith's continual boasting of his "victory" over Langford piqued the negro fighter. He yearned for another chance at the "white hope." After camping on Smith's trail for many months he finally caught up with him and coaxed him into a match that resulted in the fight in Boston a week or so ago.

The Langford that Smith met that night was a different Langford than the one he met nine or ten months before. It was almost the Langford of old—the trim sleek, agile Langford. "The Boston Tar Baby" trained for that second fight with Smith. He shed every ounce of superfluous flesh. He got down to fighting form. Age has slowed Langford somewhat, but "Tham" figured that he could be about 10 years older and still win from Smith.

And he did win from Smith, in a manner so decisive that it left Smith the "Alibi King" absolutely no chance to issue forth with an alibi. It was a crushing defeat for Smith—and a decisive victory for a negro fighter who has been called a "has-been."

The elimination of Smith as a contender for the heavyweight championship of the world has not clarified the situation, however. Smith's feat has caused Jess Willard to sit into the glare of the publicity spotlight and shriek louder than ever that "I am the man—the only man—who can whip Johnson"

If a toss-up as to which fighter—Smith or Willard—is the greater joke as far as championship caliber is concerned. Willard, one of the hugest men that ever donned a pair of boxing gloves, endowed with an enormous reach and great weight and endurance lacks the greatest asset of a real fighter—the fighting spirit.

Willard is not a natural fighter—and he will never be a real fighter. He has been mingling in ring engagements for several years. What has he accomplished? A few knockouts over dub heavyweights who wouldn't have fared much better than a burlesque affair. He tackled Carl Morris, as big as himself, and he seemed afraid to wade in. He was as clumsy as a sea lion. His punches lacked steam, his defense was weak and aggressiveness was a foreign quality.

And this is the man who has an idea that he can whip Johnson!

Willard couldn't whip Smith. Langford, not rated nearly as high as Jack Johnson, turned the trick in three rounds. Where does Willard enter?

The heavyweight situation, as far as the white race is concerned, is in just the same condition as it was in 1910 after Johnson hammered Jeffries into unconsciousness. There is not a white man in sight at the present time who has a chance with Johnson, despite the fact that the Johnson of today isn't the Johnson of 1910.

Johnson's four years of dissipation has robbed him of some of his speed, it has softened his muscles, and probably has dulled his one-time adroit pugilistic brain. But Johnson today is better, by far, than any man in the "white hope" division and if Johnson was confronted with the task of disposing of two "white hopes" in one night the chances are he would be equal to

"The Misleading Lady."

What will probably be the most notable comedy offering of the season will be "The Misleading Lady" which is to be presented at the New opera house tonight, Oct. 28.

"The Misleading Lady" contains a lesson for young women who tamper with the heartstrings of men under the guise of harmless flirtation, but the lesson goes only so far as to lead to interesting situations and no further. In this instance the maiden by the woman's deceit, decides to try love-making as it is done in faraway Patagonia, or some such place. He tosses his overcoat over her head, catches her in his arms, bundles her into his automobile and drives to his shooting lodge in the Adirondacks.

Other things happen with much speed at the lodge. A harmless lunatic, who has escaped from a neighboring sanitarium, is in possession of the lodge, so while the man is trying to convince the woman into barbarian beliefs of love making the lunatic is trying to convince both of them he is Napoleon Bonaparte. And then the young friends arrive to rescue her, but she refuses to be rescued. Seats now on sale.

"THE REAL PENROSE"

PENROSE MACHINE AIDED WILD FOWLS; SPURNED WORKMEN

Pennsylvania Federation of Labor in Report Tells How Gang Betrayed Labor, But Helped Wild Turkeys.

The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, comprising all the union labor men of this state, know what happened to the workmen's compensation act at the last session of the State Legislature.

In spite of repeated promises to these men, Senator Penrose and his two organization chiefs, Senators William E. Crow and Jamse P. McNichol, defeated the compensation bill.

In telling about the defeat of this good law the report of the legislative committee of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor says:

"But the senators, like those whom the gods would destroy, madly stuck to the dollar. Crow groaned for it, Homsher grinned for it, Sones growled for it. The dollar triumphed. We were defeated. But not disgraced and discouraged. For since the senators were humanely enough disposed to pass laws providing for sanitary finger bowls, for the protection of wild turkeys and to limit the work hours for horses, there is hope that they may, some day, reach such a soul softened stage as to forget their own interests long enough to allow them to pass a bill for the protection of widows and orphans."

HERE THEY ARE— ALL ON THE JOB FOR PENROSE AGAIN

B. M. Clark, solicitor of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Company, who camped at Harrisburg at the last session of the state legislature and was the principal lobbyist against the workmen's compensation bill, is now on the stump for Penrose. He says he used to be a Democrat.

F. W Walker, head of a manufacturers' association of Beaver county, who succeeded in having the bill mutilated at the last session of the state legislature that would have prevented lead poisoning among workers, is leading the campaign for Penrose in his home district.

Joseph Grundy of Bristol, chief lobbyist against the child labor bill, is spending money and personally working for Penrose in his home county.

Neil Bonner of Philadelphia, one of the principal lobbyists against the local option bill at the last session of the state legislature, and president of the liquor dealers' state association, is out publicly and working vigorously for Penrose and Brumbaugh.

DETRICH SMASHES PENROSE'S BLUFF

Washington Party State Chairman Asks Questions Which Boss Has Been Unable to Answer

In a speech at Waynesboro, Franklin county, recently, A. Nevin Detrich, state chairman of the Washington party, took as his text, the statement of Penrose, made last June, in which the boss said he would answer for his record.

"It has been several months since that time," said Detrich, "and although we have asked him in twenty different ways, he has side-stepped every question.

"I challenge Senator Penrose to answer for his record. That record, which he has created in the seventeen years of his service is the most damning indictment ever presented against any public man in our generation.

"Penrose, by his own votes, which are in the Congressional Record for all to see, has been a servant of the trusts, of the special interests, of the liquor interests, of the financial pirates, and of every evil force that has tried to thrust its dirty paws into American politics.

"Boies Penrose says he will answer any question on his record.

"I ask him why he voted on every occasion against the direct election of United States senators?

"Why did he vote on every occasion for Lorimer, the corrupt Illinois boss, who was expelled from the senate because the senators found that the record of his election 'reeks and teems with the evidence of a general scheme of corruption?'

"Why was he one of the 'brazen five' who were the only senators to vote for Robert W. Archbald, a corrupt Scranton judge, who was impeached and dragged from the bench because he used his position as judge for his own profit?

"Why did he refuse to vote for the workmen's compensation bill, the child labor bureau bill, the eight hour day for laborers?

"Why is every crooked interest in the state supporting him? He is asking for our votes, and we have a right to know."

PENROSE BUTTONS LITTER STREET

William Townsend, a street sweeper of Coatesville, who keeps Main street between First and Third avenues clean, declared Wednesday that he had swept up at least 500 Penrose and Brumbaugh buttons in the last few days. This is only two squares of the town. Following the temperance talk at the Tabernacle by Dr. George W. Anderson, the militant minister, many Penrose buttons were cast from coat lapels as the men passed out of the building.—Christiana Ledger.

CORRUPT PRACTICES BILL DEFEATED BY THE MACHINE

By WILLIAM DRAPER LEWIS

The corrupt practices act defeated by the Penrose machine in 1913 would have limited the amount of money which candidates or their friends might spend in primary or election campaigns. For example, a candidate for governor would have been forbidden to spend more than $10,000; a candidate for senator, more than $1,000. The law was so framed as to make evasion by the formation of "Protective Unions," or otherwise virtually impossible. It also included provisions for the publication by the state of an official voters' pamphlet a copy of which would have been mailed to every registered voter two weeks before election. Not only would this pamphlet have permitted every candidate for office to bring his appeal directly home to the voters, but it would also have given any person objecting to the nomination or election of a candidate an opportunity to state his objections and have them presented to every voter—not merely those who subscribe for a partioular partisan newspaper. The expense of issuing the pamphlet would have been borne in part by the respective candidates.

Wm. Draper Lewis

Such a law would be a great step toward clean politics. It was opposed and defeated by the Penrose forces in the senate of 1913 because the one thing which the Penrose political machine favors above all else is an act which limits the power of money in politics and which contains provisions tending to produce intelligent thoughtful action on the part of the voters. They opposed the bill for the same reason that they have always opposed any change in the present vicious provision permitting the assistance of voters in marking their ballot on election day.

It is a significant fact that Dr Brumbaugh has not, up to this time made any reference either in his original public statement or in any of his utterances, to the necessity in this state for the passage of the corrupt practices act or in any other act dealing with the subject.

A Pertinent Query.

Ask your neighbor who is in favor of sobriety and decency, whether he believes that Brumbaugh is sincere for local option when Neil Bonner, the president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Liquor Dealers, is urging saloon keepers all over the state to support him.—Mt. Jewett Herald.

CENTRE COUNT MINISTERS ASK PALMER TO WITHDRAW

Association Representing All Denominations Urge Concentration of Anti-Penrose Strength on Gifford Pinchot.

Since the indorsement of Gifford Pinchot by a state-wide non-partisan committee of local option and social workers at Harrisburg recently, the sentiment that the Progressive nominee is the one candidate who can defeat Penrose and his system in Pennsylvania has spread all over the state.

Additional evidence of the strong hold that the Pinchot candidacy has taken among voters who regard the defeat of Penrose as the important issue of the campaign comes from Centre county in the following message:

"Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 7.

"Resolved, by the Ministerial Association of Centre county, representing all the Christian denominations of the county, that in view of the political situation, present and prospective in the state of Pennsylvania, in order to effect the elimination of Boies Penrose and Penrosoism, the wisest right thing for Mr. Palmer to do at this juncture is to withdraw from the candidacy for United States senator in favor of Mr Pinchot."

The above resolution was unanimously adopted in session today.

WALTER FAY CARSON,
Secretary Ministerial Association of Centre county.

Items of Interest, Gathered Here and There, For The Boys Who Man The Trains

TRAINMEN MAY TRY THE TRAIN LIMIT LAW

In the event of the full crew law's being repealed in the next general assembly it is proposed by the trainmen's organization to introduce a car limit bill, the effects of this to be to limit the number of cars that may be placed inasingle train. The announcement comes from the general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in Philadelphia. The opinion prevails among the members of the various brotherhoods that the law will not be repealed . In this connection the general chairman made the following statement:

"The operation of the full crew law has been so satisfactory that its repeal is highly improbable It was enacted into law after most careful legislative investigation not only in this but in other states. The supreme court of the United States has twice passed upon the constitutionality of such laws, once in relation to the Arkansas act, and again when the Indiana act, was repealed. There is now pending a referendum on such a law in Missouri. Full crew laws are now in operation in about eighteen states and their value has been proved in all. The supreme court in Pennsylvania supported our present law. In face of such convincing facts as these, it is unlikely the voter of the state will ask for the repeal of the measure on the Pennsylvania law books.

"Although the railroads contend the requirements of a full crew law is an unnecessary burden, it is a dire necessity under present-day conditions. Railroad discipline is so strict ,the working crews must observe so many borough and city ordinances in the operation of trains, that a full crew law is an absolute necessity for every train."

Railroads Are Fined

The agricultural department at Washington reports that fines imposed on railroads in August for the violation of the 28-hour law, regulating the transportation of cattle, amounted to $25,000. In July the aggregate of the fines was $9,001, and in June $4,972. More than half the penalties collected in August came from three roads, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Idle Cars Accumulate .

Siding and storage tracks along the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad are rapidly filling up with freight cars made idle by the present slump in business. Freight traffic, except in certain departments is at a low ebb. Engines are also being stored both on the main line and branches. In the last week more than 1,200 cars have been stored on the Pennsylvania's big storage track between Petersburg, Pa., and Hollidaysburg, Pa. Most of these are of the new steel type cars that were used in the Western Pennsylvania district. At present 1,157 cars are stored along the Petersburg branch.

PROPOSED LICENSING OF PRACTICING ENGINEERS

Governor Tener appointed a commission in 1913 to suggest legislation looking toward the licensing of practicing civil engineers, as lawyers and doctors are licensed.

A meeting of the commission will be held in Harrisburg, at the rooms of the Engineers Society of Pennsylvania, today, at which any one interested is to appear.

From this section E. W. Hess expects to be there, and will also take part as a member of the nominating committee for the election of officers for the society for the coming year.

WAR MAPS FOR PROGRESS READERS

Valuable Aids to Understanding of European Situation

A HANDSOME PIECE OF WORK

With These Maps the Public Can Tell at a Glance the Location of the Cities and Towns Where the Battling Nations are Struggling for Supremacy—How Maps May be Procured.

In keeping with its determination to give the readers of the Progress the latest and best news of the great European war, the management of this paper has decided to distribute to the public at a nominal cost to the people an official map of the territory in which the big armies of the warring powers are fighting. With the aid of this map the citizen can trace accurately the movements of the armies and discover the scenes of battles as reported day by day in the news columns of the Progress.

This map is large, is printed in five colors, with the names and locations of the towns and cities, mountains, rivers and other data necessary to a complete understanding of the situation in the war zone. The map was originally made in Europe by the wax process, at once expensive and complete, and has been reproduced in this country on copperplate. The type is clear and the places sought by the man who is after information regarding the war are plainly marked. On the back of this map is to be found the latest and most authentic information regarding the nations now engaged in the conflict.

The Progress has been able to procure a number of these maps for distribution to those who wish to have an intelligent conception of the great events which are happening in Europe. To secure one of these maps the reader will cut the coupon from another page of this paper and present it, with ten cents, at the counter of the business office of the Progress and one of the maps will be handed to him. As the number of copies of the map which the Progress was able to get is limited it will be well for those who wish copies to call early.

The maps will be sent by mail either in town or out of town for 12 cents in coin, stamps or money order

They are really the most valuable maps of Europe that are in existence, and will prove a source of profit to those who wish to learn more than they know of the countries across the seas. If you wish to keep posted on the movements of the immense armies in the greatest conflict the world has ever known, get one of these maps at once.

CURWENSVILLE

Edited by G. F. Kittleberger, Jr.

The Osceola High school football team, although playing a good game, lost to the Curwensville High school team Saturday afternoon by a score of 19 to 6. The teams are about evenly matched and Saturday's game was one of the cleanest ever played on the home grounds. Referee Robinson gave both sides a square deal. The game started at 3 o'clock. Osceola won the toss and decided to defend the east goal.

Married at the Methodist parsonage Curwensville, Monday evening, Oct. 26, Raymond Young and Miss Ellen Crawshaw, both of Philipsburg. After a honeymoon of ten days Mr. and Mrs. Young will be at home to friends in Philipsburg. J. M. Lee, officiating clergyman.

BURGESS ASKS CITIZENS TO CLEAN PREMISES

Burgess Callahan desires the citizens of Clearfield to clean up about their premises before the snows of winter fall. He has issued the following proclamation:

To the Citizens of Clearfield:

Cleanliness is conductive to good health and good morals, and I wish to thank everybody for what has been accomplished in the past summer towards keeping our town clean, for we have not had a communicable disease for almost five weeks, which is a most creditable record.

Now I kindly ask you to clean up. Do not let the beautiful snow cover up your filth. Clean up! Clean up the lots, the front yards, back yards and all the alleys. Do not be afraid you pick up something you did not put there. Clean up everything and our people will rise up and call you blessed.

Your Honored Servant,
HOBART CALLAHAN, Burgess.

PINCHOT, FIGHTER FOR PEOPLE, SAYS SCRANTON EDITOR

Robert D. Towne Tells How State Will Gain by Electing Pike County Man

"Gifford Pinchot has acquired by actual work in the government service a knowledge of its working and of the needs of the people possessed by few men in American public life," says Robert D. Towne, editor of the Scranton Daily News.

"Mr. Pinchot has not only been long in the government service, but has been a life-long student of social and political economy, and is in full accord with the nation-wide movement for the uplift of society and the improvement of the condition of the workers who create the wealth of the nation.

"It is in this respect that Pinchot differs most from Penrose. He stands for what the people of Pennsylvania want, while Penrose is and has been, during his career in the senate the special representative of the trusts and combinations that profit through governmental favors and fatten at the expense of the public.

Trained Public Servant.

"Gifford Pinchot stands first for the entire social and industrial program of the National Progressive platform, including a workmen's compensation law. He believes with all others who are interested in human welfare that the great transportation, manufacturing and building industries and [illegible] should bear the burden of [illegible] accidents.

[illegible] of a working day [illegible] and that the [illegible] by the workmen [illegible] but must be [illegible] standard of [illegible] employ [illegible] and [illegible] country [illegible] wage [illegible] [illegible] on the ground that the conditions [illegible] decencies of life should not be denied to the mothers of the country. He is also an advocate of an effective game save law and its rigorous enforcement, contending that [illegible] pigeons that prey [illegible] should [illegible]

Stripped by [illegible] Cave Without redress.

A Vigorous Fighter.

"Gifford Pinchot also stands for the initiative, referendum and recall, which means that the national and state legislatures shall be subservient to the will of the people. His opponent, Senator Penrose, is openly opposed to the principle involved in this idea, standing with ex-President Taft in support of the view that ours is a government of the people by a representative few of the people, whose right to enact laws without consulting the people who must live under them may not be questioned.

"Mr. Pinchot also stands for equal suffrage for men and women, in the belief that the influence of the women is needed in public affairs. He is an ardent advocate of local option on the question of licensing the liquor traffic, which simply means home rule, or the right of the people of each county and large city to regulate the traffic as they may see fit.

Well Represents the People.

"The Progressive candidate is also an advocate of the spread of knowledge by the state to all its citizens, old and young, to help them in solving their private and public problems, and opening the school buildings to the people.

"Gifford Pinchot is not only committed to the advocacy of the principles and purposes here enumerated, but has the courage and capacity as well as the determination and legislative skill to promote them effectually if elected. In exchanging Penrose for Pinchot the voters of the state not only take no risk but are certain to choose a representative in the senate who will be a credit to the state, and who will represent all the people, and not a few of them."

PENNA. LEADS COUNTRY IN EXTRAVAGANT ROAD BUILDING

In 1913 there was a great outcry in New York state because of the scandalous extravagance of the political machine in building roads.

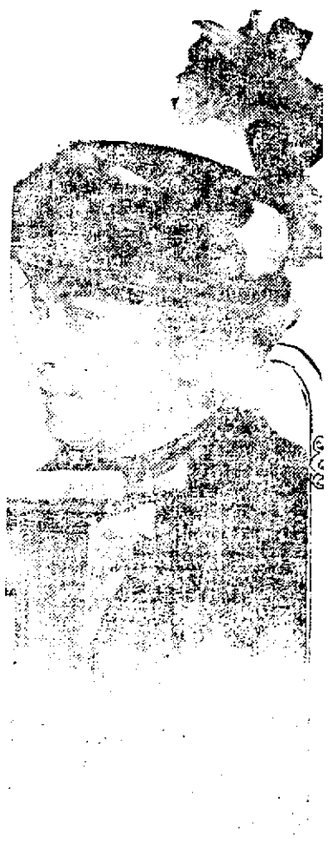
The political machine in New York, through its roads department, built roads at a cost of $12,500 per mile.

THE ROADS IN PENNSYLVANIA UNDER THE BIGELOW DEPARTMENT HAVE COST THE TAXPAYERS $19,322.15 a mile.

Ohio's roads cost $8,383 per mile.

Maryland's roads cost $9,986.62 per mile.

If Penrose and Brumbaugh are elected the same gang will run the highway department.



Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Nelson L. Pollard, by confessing her guilt, has cleared up a poison plot [illegible] which [illegible] trouble in [illegible] the past seven years.

IS HE A STRADDLER OR DOESN'T HE KNOW?

The "Personal Liberty" party is the ticket of the liquor men of this state.

Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh is the candidate for governor on that ticket.

He had it in his power to withdraw as a candidate from that ticket, but he did not do so.

Besides Dr. Brumbaugh, the "Personal Liberty" party has as its candidates Boies Penrose, the avowed candidate of the liquor people; Frank McClain of Lancaster, also an avowed candidate of the liquor people; John R. K. Scott of Philadelphia, also a liquor candidate, and other men known widely as liquor candidates.

Some days ago Vance McCormick, Washington-Democratic candidate for governor, insisted that any man who ran with him on the same ticket should withdraw from the "Personal Liberty" party ticket.

McCormick stands for local option and against liquor.

Brumbaugh had the same chance, but preferred to stand with Penrose, McClain and the other liquor candidates.

And yet Brumbaugh says he is sincerely for local option!

Which Will He Fool?

The liquor interests are practically a unit in their opposition to local option. They are well-nigh unanimous in their support of Dr. Brumbaugh, who is pledged to local option. Some temperance folks are supporting him on the strength of his pledge, but we submit that if he is elected governor, it would be absolutely necessary for him to double cross either the liquor men to whom he will owe his election or to those temperance advocates who have supported him on his word that he would work for and sign a local option bill.—American Issue.
